Hines Named Frederick County Farm Family Of The Year

KAREN BUTLER
Maryland Correspondent

UNION BRIDGE, Md. — Back a meandering one mile Frederick County farm lane is Hidden Acres Farm, the home of George and Fern Hines and family. The family maintains a generations-old commitment to farming, with three generations currently involved in the successful diversified dairy and custom farming operation. Their stewardship of the land and extensive participation in agricultural and community organizations recently earned the Hines family recognition by Frederick County as Farm Family of the Year.

Fern is the 5th generation of her family to milk cows in Frederick County, making her children and grandchildren generations number 6 and 7. She credits her grandmother Bessie Bowers with raising a family who valued farming and appreciated the style of life it offered. "My grandmother had 12 children, and out of the 12, six of them were farmers at one time of day," she said.

George and Fern have four children, three of who are actively in-

Tobacco Growers Receive $1.80 A Pound Or More, But Buyers Are Selective At Start Of Auction Season

ANDY ANDREWS

PARADISE (Lancaster Co.) — "Be patient and we'll find you a market," said Eric Probst, manager of Paradise Tobacco Auction, to approximately 200 sellers Monday morning after what can only be described as a "sporadic" start to the county's tobacco auction season.

Top price paid for six skids on Monday was $1.90 per pound, according to Mitch White of the auction.

Many sellers expected their top crop to go for at least $1.80 per pound — the price being paid to some growers under private contract in the field. They were not disappointed.

However, at the beginning of Monday's auction, Eric Probst stopped the sale and spoke to the sellers. He allowed the buyers to select only the tobacco they wanted and pass by the rest. Buyers bid on only the top leaves, mostly for $1.80 a pound.

There were reports that some buyers were buying tobacco privately a few weeks before the auction from $1.80-$1.90 a pound.

This year there were no sales scheduled at Farmer's Tobacco Warehouse in Kirkwood for an undisclosed reason. The phone number to the warehouse was disconnected.

"This is the most tobacco we've ever had on the floor," said Donna Probst. The warehouse in Paradise on Monday held 660,000 pounds, she said.

Bids on the first day averaged $1.78 per pound, according to Donna Probst. But farmers weren't selling. Many are still holding out for better prices next week. Total number of pounds sold Monday was 147,000.

There were close to 200 sellers and six buyers on the floor at the sale Monday. Auctioneer was Mitch Ashby from Burlington, N.C.

"You got a pretty crop of tobacco here," Probst told the sellers.

Growers who needed to test the price "waters" either brought their tobacco to Paradise, sold it privately, or were just curious about what the price floor would be.

One grower from Marticville already sold his crop of 10,000 pounds off of five acres privately to a buyer. He received a price of $1.60 per pound of straight strip and $2.45 per pound of binder leaf.

PRICES TO RETAILERS IN BOSTON WERE UNCHANGED TO THREE CENTS LOWER FOR MEDIUMS AND BALANCE OF PRICES WAS UNCHANGED. THE MARKET TONE WAS GENERALLY STEADY. SUPPLIES OF BOTH BROWN AND WHITE GGS WERE GENERALLY ADEQUATE WITH LARGER SIZES OCCASIONALLY SHORT AND SMALLER SIZES USUALLY AVAILABLE. BREAKING STOCK SUPPLIES WERE ADEQUATE TO AMPLE FOR THE LIGHT DEMAND. OFFERINGS OF SPENT HENS WERE SUFFICIENT FOR PROCESSING PLANTS TO RUN FULL SLAUGHTER SCHEDULES.

Delmarva Broiler

ATLANTA, GA
ECEMBER 10, 1997

DELMARVA BROILER/FRYER MARKET. FEDERAL-STATE Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds was light and unaggressive. Offerings were readily available and difficult to clear. Live supplies were mostly moderate; weights varied in a full range of light to heavy. Processing schedules were reduced a bit and were moderate in total. Less than truckiot asking prices were 1 cent lower at 45 to 59 cents. Trade sentiment remained weak and unsettled. In the parts complex, all items were in a range of adequate to ample with limited buying interest noted.

USDA-MO Dept Ag Market News

DAILY NATIONAL GRAIN SUMMARY

Grain and soybean bids mostly treading water as there is no big news to rock the boat or set a new course. Advances one day usually offset by declines the next day or so. Wheat very uneven, steady to 4 cents lower; corn steady to 2 cents higher; sorghum little change; soybeans 6 to 8 cents higher, and still tying to recoup last Thursday's decline. Exports and government reports generally the market makers this time of the year. U.S.D.A. to release a report tomorrow morning. This is not expected to cause a tidal wave or sink the ship. Industry members are guessing corn export figures will be revised downward, and holdings up. Two reasons for this assumption- 1. A big corn crop this year and prices about in line with a year ago. Holdings in strong hands after the big seasonal price upturn last year, over 5.00 by Summer. July futures for next year are 2.92. Don't look for any big late year selling for tax purposes. 2. Some of our big importers all up and down the Pacific Rim are having major financial problems and some other Asian currencies are grasping to stay afloat. IMF throwing out life jackets to buoy these countries up. Iraq oil for food is not on solid ground. Soybean futures higher today, with elevators and processors putting a little frosting on the cake by upping basis.

The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

DECEMBER 15-21, 1997

WINTER SOLSTICE, DEC. 21.

EMBER DAYS

This Wednesday, Friday, and Saturday follow the third Sunday in Advent, which makes them Ember Days. Almanacs note four annual sets of Ember Days because they are traditionally used for predicting the weather. The weather on Wednesday, December 17, for example — whether blustery, unseasonably warm, or characteristically seasonable — is supposed to predict the type of weather for January 1998. Friday the 19th predicts that for February 1998, and the Saturday weather (Dec. 20) has something to tell us about March. Ember Days also follow the first Sunday in Lent, Whit Sunday, and the third Sunday in September

As long as the Sun shines, one does not ask for the Moon.

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ Mittens are warmer than gloves, and many light layers are warmer than one heavy one.

PORK CHOP & POTATO BAKE

- 4 to 5 medium potatoes, sliced thin
- 1 onion, sliced thin
- salt and pepper
- 4 center-cut pork chops
- 1 can cream of mushroom soup (or other cream sauce)

Grease a deep-dish pie plate or casserole. Place sliced potatoes evenly on the bottom, spread onions over them, and add salt and pepper to taste Top with pork chops, then spread cream of mushroom soup (don't add water) or cream sauce over the top. Bake at 375° F for about 1 hour, until the potatoes are cooked through and the pork chops are tender.

Makes 4 servings.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

St. Thomas gray! St. Thomas gray! The longest night and the shortest day (Dec. 21).

On St. Thomas the Divine, kill all turkeys, geese, and swine.

– Russian proverb

ENB has been a part of Ephrata since 1881 This building at 110 East Main Street was the Bank's home from 1884 until 1925.

My calendar has 365 days

Although I am new to Ephrata National Bank, ENB is not new to me In my 26 years of agricultural lending, mostly in Lancaster County, I came to respect ENB as a tough competitor for quality agricultural loans

ENB has been providing loans and other banking services to farmers since 1881 Many of the philosophies that helped ENB enjoy more than a century of growth are as important today as they ever were Take the way we calculate interest on loans The traditional way to calculate interest on a loan is to use the number of days in a year, which on my calendar is 365 Many, if not most, lenders use a 360-day year

What does that mean to you? Well, on a $100,000 loan at 8½% (the current prime rate), your interest bill at ENB would be $8,500 If you paid interest on the basis of a 360-day year, your loan would cost you $8,618, or an annual difference of $118

If you prefer the traditional way we calculate interest, give me a call We've got lots to talk about

OPINION

Farmers Need A Raise

The price of dairy products—from the fluid milk you have on your morning cereal to the yogurt and cheese your kids enjoy—could be going up soon. Lest you assume that Bossy's owners must be livin' high on the hog, allow me to set the record straight.

American dairy farmers haven't had a raise in nearly 20 years. In September of 1997, dairy farmers received a base price of 52 cents for a half gallon of milk, roughly the same as there were paid for their milk in 1979. Meanwhile, equipment costs, veterinary expenses, property taxes, real estate values and everything else they must purchase to run their dairies has gone up at a rate of 3-5 percent per year. In addition, in recent years, dairy farmers have had to make considerable capital investments in order to comply with state and federal environmental regulations.

As a result, many independent dairy farmers are having to call it quits. Four to five dairy farms in America's dairy land—Wisconsin—go out of business every day. This trend is being replicated on a national level, with 10 percent of the nation's dairy farmers going out of business in 1996.

A large number of family owned and operated dairies have for decades provided American consumers with a steady, reasonably-priced supply of wholesome dairy products. When they are gone, the same guys that sell you the milk will own the cows. These new "dairy farmers" won't care if the cows live in Mexico or New Zealand, or if they must make powder and reconstitute it before it hits your grocer's shelf.

While the price paid farmers for their milk is virtually the same as it was in 1979, retail milk prices have more than doubled over the same period. Retail prices always go up when farm prices go up, yet rarely, if ever, go down when farm prices drop. For example, in September of 1996, dairy farmers suffered a 30 percent drop in prices, yet retail prices remained unchanged.

Like dairy farmers, consumers are at the mercy of the price setters, yet the worst is yet to come if today's low prices persist and independent dairy farmers are driven out of business. Corporate owners will not be satisfied with the profit margins—and certainly not the losses—endured by family dairy farmers over the last two decades.

Once corporations dominate milk production consumers can expect steep price increases. Bossy's owners need a raise and they need it now!

To Maintain Biosecurity

It has been one month since the state has lifted the quarantine for avian influenza. It has been over five months since we have had an outbreak of avian influenza in a commercial flock of poultry. Biosecurity implemented by producers and allied industry played a major factor in controlling this last outbreak of avian influenza.

However, avian influenza has not gone away. In recent testing of New York Live Bird Markets, seven markets have tested positive for avian influenza. In addition, avian influenza has been isolated from sick birds being delivered to the live markets. This year's outbreak was a result of a break down in biosecurity between the commercial industry and the New York Live Bird Markets. Right now it is impossible to eradicate avian influenza from the live markets. Thus, we must maintain our biosecurity programs at all times. Do not let your operation be the source of the next avian influenza out break! Remember, biosecurity is your responsibilty.

To Select Christmas Tree

Many people are now placing Christmas trees in their homes. Dr. Timothy Elkner, Lancaster County Extension Horticultural Agent, offers the following pointers in selecting a tree. The best needle retention is with members of the pine family. Scotch and red pines hold their needles longer than white pines. Blue and Norway spruce trees quickly drop their needles in a home setting. Firs will lose their needles a little slower than the spruces.

If your tree was already cut, tap the butt of the tree on the ground and check how many dry needles fall out. Many lost needles mean the tree is not fresh. The cut end of a recently cut tree should be sticky with sap. Before placing the tree in a stand, make a fresh cut across the bottom of the trunk to aid in water uptake. Keep the cut end under water at all times since a tree will use a lot of water in the warmth of your home.

Avoid placing the tree near hot or cold drafts which will promote needle drop. Remember, trees do not remain fresh much longer than three weeks.

To Beware of Manure Gas

Manure pits are a confined space hazard that can often claim multiple lives before someone realizes there is a danger with manure gas. Never enter a manure pit. Manure pits can be oxygen deficient, toxic and explosive. Label manure pits and manure storage areas to warn of hazardous gases such as hydrogen sulfide, ammonia, carbon dioxide and methane.

If entrance is necessary, obtain and use monitoring equipment to determine the level of gases present. If entrance is necessary, a self contained breathing apparatus must be worn by someone trained in its use. A safety harness should be worn and monitoring should continue while someone is in the manure storage area.

WHO ARE YOU HURTING?
December 14, 1997

Background Scripture:
I John 3
Devotional Reading:
Micah 4:1-7; 5:2-4

The First Epistle of John reads more like a musical score than a letter, treatsie or sermon. As in a piece of serious music, I John has a number of themes that recur throughout, like musical ideas woven into the fabric of the composition. Each time he brings back a theme, he modifies it or develops it further.

In I John 2:9 the writer warned us: "He who says he is in the light and hates his brogher is in the darkness still." Now, in I John 3 he comes back to this theme, saying: "Any one who hates his brother is a murderer, and you know that no murderer has eternal life abiding in him" (3:15).

This is strong language! Is the writer overstating the case? Can't we hate our brother without murdering him?

Of course, there are lots of people who hate without committing acts of murder. Legally, yes, the pronouncement in I John 3:15 is an overstatement. But morally — and legality and morality are not necessarily the same — the writer of this epistle is on firmer ground. He sees love and hate on the spiritual, rather than legal level. Love gives life: "We know we have passed out of death into life, because we love the brethren" (3:14a). And Jesus demonstrated this supremely: "By this we know love, that he laid down his life for us; and we ought to lay down our lives for the brethren" (3:16).

SPIRITUAL DEATH

Conversely, hate — or in its less virulent form, lack of love — takes life. "He who does not love remains in death" (3:14b). We may not actually murder someone, but hate always makes us an accomplice. Hatred creates a climate within which murder eventually occurs. Our hateful thoughts and words foster hatred which saps life and causes death, not only of the body, but also of the spirit.

Hatred of black people on the part of many of us in the United States, enabled and encouraged others to actually commit racial murders. Hatred of the Jews by millions in Nazi Germany made possible the extermination camps that murdered millions of Jews. Hatred of Roman Catholics by Protestants and of Protestants by Roman Catholics has made possible the murder of both in Northern Ireland. The reason is that hatred is not just an emotion that we experience withing ourselves, but a force for evil that snowballs outside ourselves.

I'm sure that you are consoling yourself with the assurance that, you really don't hate anyone. So the writer of John carries us a step further where that realization is not so comforting. "But if anyone has the world's goods and sees his brother in need, yet closes his heart against him, how does God's love abide in him? Little children, let us no love in word or speech but in deed and in truth" (3:17,18).

CLOSING YOUR HEART

OK, you don't have to actually hate someone: closing your heart against another has the same effect. If you see someone in need whom you can help and you don't do it, you qualify for the judgment. Not to open your heart to someone in need is a sin, too — a very serious one. And here he catches us all, doesn't he?

One of the most disturbing things I see in our society today is the mushrooming disdain which we the "haves" feel and display to the "have nots." I don't hear people verbalizing naked hatred for the poor and needy, but what I do hear and see fits nearly into the category of irrational hostility. We blame the poor for their poverty, the needy for their needs, the helpless for their helplessness. When we "see a brother in need," the response I John calls for is one of compassionate, giving love, not hostility and disdain.

Unfortunately, much as it hurts those on whose needs we turn our backs, we are the ones who are hurt the most by our failure to love. It is easy to "love in word or speech," but we are called to love, not with words, but "in deed and in truth."

Who are you hurting the most? Three guesses.

Technology That Yields®

Hybrids that deliver more of what you grow corn for.

PIONEER 34G81 NEW Elite — 107 CRM
High-yield potential with moderate gray leaf spot resistance A great choice for high or low yield environments Reliable stalks and superior staygreen Outstanding drought tolerance Good test weight This hybrid can move north of zone

PIONEER 33V08 NEW Bt — 111 CRM
Plant this new hybrid with the YieldGard gene early or late in non gray leaf spot conditions to best manage ECB pressure Expect good standability, and excellent staygreen Outstanding yield potential with moderate resistance to corn earworm This hybrid is widely adaptable, however it is not adapted to late planting dates or conditions with gray leaf spot pressure In the absence of corn borer damage, performs similar to 3394

PIONEER 33Y09 NEW Bt — 113 CRM
Look to 33Y09 with the YieldGard® gene for exceptional resistance to ECB and intermediate resistance to corn earworm Moderate resistance to gray leaf spot, and it is well suited for no till, continuous corn acreage Outstanding yield potential stalk strength and staygreen along with good roots and superior test weight, contribute toward this hybrid's season long dependability

PIONEER 32K61 NEW Elite — 114 CRM
An excellent agronomic package with superior drought tolerance Excellent stalks, roots and staygreen A good choice for no-till/conservation till thanks to good early growth and superior gray leaf spot resistance Excellent grain yield potential with heavy test weight and fast drydown 32K61 shows promise for high silage yields and exceptional digestibility

Tull Hill Farms doesn't own that building, but a sharp management decision made it one of their best assets.

Jimmy and Michael Hill, Tull Hill Farms, Kinston, North Carolina

The Hill family was ready to pay cash for a new 80,000 square foot storage facility for Tull Hill Farms. They changed their mind when Telmark explained how much they could save by leasing the facility instead. Their sharp management decision saved profits by adding to the bottom line with a Telmark operating lease. They also have a buyout option at the end of the lease term.

The Hill family found the tax breaks, end-of-term buyout option, and flexible payment plan so attractive, they leased the complete facility. Most lenders aren't ready to offer this kind of alternative financing.

Telmark understands building and equipment financing needs for all types of commercial and agricultural operations. For a financing source that's been listening to farmers for over 30 years, call your Telmark representative or 800-451-3322.

Warren Development Board Announces Easements

WARREN (Warren Co.) — Warren County has 3,097 acres that will remain sprawling, rolling hills and fields of green as the last of the 1996 Farmland Preservation easement purchases is finalized.

Duane Copley, administrator for the Warren County Farmland Preservation Program, has announced the Warren County Agriculture Development Board has closed on the last of three 1996 easement purchases on Tuesday, Dec. 2. The development rights on John Oostdyk's 146-acre farm on Mountain View Road in Franklin Township was purchased for $525,540. Warren County contributed $154,877.

The Warren County Ag Development Board closed on Henry Trout's 159-acre farm on Asbury-Bloomsbury Road on Oct. 27. The development easement of Trout's farm, also in Franklin Township, cost $545,353. Warren County's share was $154,334.

Warren County has 21 farms in the Farmland Preservation Program, including the purchase of the 97-acre easement on Lou Risko's farm earlier this year.

The 1997 round of purchases will bring the 140-acre Genesis Farms and the 76-acre Moore Farm, both in Frelinghuysen, and the 179-acre Jozwick Farm in Knowlton into the Farmland Preservation Program.

640 Attend Lebanon Farm-City Celebration Banquet

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

NORTH CORNWALL (Lebanon Co.) — The Lebanon Valley community celebrated its Farm-City relationships and interdependence Tuesday evening at the Lebanon Area Fairgrounds Exposition Center.

The large conference barn is outfitted with a modern sound system, lighting and design. The heated facility easily accommodated the 641 banquet participants.

Commodity royalty, including dairy, sheep and wool, and beef queens and princesses, area farmers and their families, local agribusiness representatives and families, county commissioners, staff and representatives of state representatives and county Sen. David Brightbill, other government officials, 4-H program supporters and volunteers, non-farm business representatives and families — all sat down to a meal, entertainment, and presentations from the program's Farm-City exchange participants.

When designed and built, the convention barn at the Lebanon Area Fairgrounds was especially made for large capacity crowds, as well as adaptability to a wide range of events.

Even with a heavy crowd, the Lebanon Area Fair dairy show occupies but half of the floor space. It is adaquate size to serve as a site for a farm equipment open house.

But for Tuesday evening, it was fairly well filled with people from both farm and nonfarm lifestyles joining together to express an appreciation for, and desire to understand more about, each other.

The Annville-Cleona High School choir, from a three-tiered platform at one end of the long high-ceiling room, sang a number of selections during the first hour.

The center of the rectangular hall floor was filled with round white tables with white chairs, all set with dessert pies and dinnerware.

The event requires reservations, and guests were helped to their seat by volunteers and a floor plan.

In the inside lobby area, a series of Christmas trees were aligned as to form a funnel for the guests to enter the convention hall.

(Turn to Page A23)

Commercial support of the Lebanon Farm-City Banquet and program, is strong, not only with the equipment displayed here at the beverage line, but with financial, technical, equipment, time and other volunteer donations.

Lebanon County Farm-City Banquet participants make their way quickly through the buffet line, while others sit at their tables and get to know each other somewhat better before the meal.

Included among the entrance-way exhibits was a living Nativity scene, performed by youth members of the congregation of the Midway Church of the Brethren, located very near the fairgrounds.

Inside the large hall, quilts lined the length of one of the long walls, with various booths in front. For example, Limestone Springs Trout Farm of Richland had a table with samples served during the social hour prior to the meal. Other groups and businesses had similarly exhibits.

In one corner along the opposite wall, the Lebanon Valley Woolseys — a sheep-to-shaw type, wool spinning and weaving guild — was set up with spinning wheel and loom. Members included spinner Peggy Schott, Pat Thalhauser, Trudy Kreider, weaver Barbara Hehnly, and Jim and Peggy Brown.

The team busies themselves in the making of a shaw, the whole while. They finished in time for an after-meal auction.

From the wool of a Merrino/Suffolk crossbred ewe, "Elsa," owned by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bennetch of Schaefferstown, the Woolseys weaved a varigated twill shaw of tans and brown.

It later sold for $375.

The pre-meal audience milled throughout the building and gathered around the Woolseys, watching the team work.

Along the length of that side of the hall, Eli's Catering had long tables set up with hot-serving buffet lines. A large banner at mid-hall announced that the 1998 Lebanon Area Fair is to start July 25.

At the podium, the master of ceremonies job was performed by Dr. Harry Zechman, superintendent of schools for Eastern Lebanon County School District (ELCO).

Kenneth Winebark, of Myerstown, the former Penn State Cooperative Extension livestock agent, currently involved with youth ministries, provided the invocation.

After the meal, Jodi Loose of Keystone Farm Credit, Farm-City Committee co-chairperson (co-chaired with Jerry Landuyt of Kutztown Bologna Company), presented a gumball machine to Alyssa Smith of Lebanon, as a prize for having the first place entry in the Farm-City coloring contest.

Included as part of the program, and a highlight of the event, was the presentation of a Century Farm Award to Lewis and Janet Werner of Lickdale.

Dennis Grumbine, a county agribusinessman, long-time program supporter and current director of the Pennsylvania State Farm Show, presented the award to the Werners on behalf of the state Department of Agriculture.

Though State Secretary of Agriculture Samuel Hayes Jr., has made such presentations, he was unavailable for the ceremony, representing the state on a trade mission to the Pacific Rim and Australia.

volved in the farm. Son Jim and his wife Cindy and their children Jimmy and Heather, Steven and his wife Vickie, and daughter Stacey all work on the farm as needed. Another daughter, Lydia Myers, lives nearby, and children Adam and Michael can often be found helping with the chores when visiting.

George and Fern grew up living on opposite ends of the same road. "George used to fill my dad's silo," Fern recalls, "and our fathers were great friends." The couple started out farming near Libertytown when they first married. They purchased their present farm near the Carroll and Frederick County border 22 years ago, and after bulldozing everything but the house, cow barn, and one old barn, have been making improvements on it ever since.

The farm consists of 127 acres, with another 650 rented and double cropped. They milk approximately 60 cows, have a custom farming business that amounts to about 1,000 acres, and have also recently started a dealership selling farm equipment. "We call ourselves diversified farmers because we do it all" laughed Fern. They are shifting the focus of the operation to more toward the custom and grain farming, and to George's equipment dealership.

The custom farming business started out with George filling neighbors' silos. Gradually it has grown each year; last year George custom farmed around 1,000 acres. "It has grown by leaps and bounds up until this year," said Fern. The drought slowed business this year. "George owns a combine and can do everything in the field for anyone," she said, "from plowing, seeding, combining, mowing, and making hay." A year ago the Hines bought out a small dealership that sells parts, feeders, wagons, and seed corn, and they are trying to grow that business.

They have milked up to 130 cows, but have been culling cows all year long. Fern says the decision to reduce the milking string down to its present 60 head is a function of both poor milk prices and the dry year. "I really think the milk prices and the dairy situation is more stressful than the drought," she said, "We've always gambled with mother nature. But when you can't see where it's going to get any better, it's frustrating," she explained.

The milking herd at Hidden Acres is a hodgepodge of breeds. They started out milking Holsteins, and they still account for the largest percentage of the herd, with about half registered and half grade. "Then Steven brought the Jerseys to the farm," said Fern, "and then Stacey brought the Shorthorns." There are also Brown Swiss and various crossbred cows in the milking string. They are not on test. The Hines have their breeding program down to a science. Almost all the Jerseys are registered, and they are bred AI. The Hines use a Milking Shorthorn bull for that first calf heifers, even the Holsteins. They also run two Holstein bulls with the cows, except for the Shorthorn cows, who get a shot of Lutelase and are bred AI. They also raise about 30 steers.

George with some of the Hidden Acres heifers. They are housed in pens in groups of 8-10 up until breeding age, then run with a bull.

Out of this vast assortment of dairy cattle some outstanding animals have risen to the top, both in putting milk in the tank and gathering honors on the local and national show circuit. One went to Madison recently, and will go on to Louisville in November. All the Jerseys did very well this year, taking first and second place ribbons at the shows. At the Frederick County fair a Jersey shown by Jimmy was junior champion in the open and 4-H shows, where Adam showed the senior and grand champion. Adam also had the best bred and owned cow at the Montgomery County, Frederick County, and state fairs. At state fair Heather had junior, senior, and grand champion with a Milking Shorthorn in the 4-H show. She showed the senior and grand champion Milking Shorthorn at the Frederick County fair.

A lot of the credit for establishing a successful Milking Shorthorn presence in Maryland goes to Fern. Her interest in Milking Shorthorns prompted her to start a junior Milking Shorthorn club in Maryland. "At one time when Stacey showed her first Milking Shorthorn they told me that would be the last of the Shorthorns," she said. That was just not what Fern wanted to hear, and she set about to prove that prediction wrong. "When I started the club I had two kids. In five years' time we have 14 members in the state," she said. Through her efforts Milking Shorthorns were reinstated in the dairy shows at the state fair, and this year there were 30 animals in the Milking Shorthorn classes at the state fair.

The Hines have been just as tireless in their dedication to the Jersey breed. Fern and Cindy share the position of secretary-treasurer for the Maryland Jersey Cattle Club. Other organizations the family is involved with include the Frederick County Farm Bureau, the Linganore 410 Grange, 4-H advisory board, Country Roads 4-H club, Maryland Holstein Association, and the Maryland Dairy Industry Association, where Fern has served as an interim director. Fern sits in the ag seat on the county planning and zoning commission, a position she calls the biggest learning experience of her life. George is a director for Southern States in Woodsboro, and a member of the Central Maryland Equipment Dealer's Association.

All feed for the cows is raised on the farm. This year George grew 180 acres of corn that all went for silage because of the drought. He raised 60 acres of alfalfa hay that went into the silo and 75 of timothy he round baled. Usually he puts 200 acres of beans out, but not this year. Seventy-five acres of early beans were planted but the late beans are still sitting in the shed on pallets. "There was no use planting them this year," he lamented. He always plants at least 200 acres in cover crops and grain, but this fall he's put in over 300. He has 50 acres of rye in for feed in the spring, and is planting 100 acres of barley and 250 of wheat. "This fall with the drought, he's putting everything he can make into barley, wheat and rye," said Fern.

George has been a cooperator with Soil Conservation all his life, and has always had a nutrient management plan. The Hines have implemented a number of conservation practices on the farm that led to Hidden Acres being used as a demonstration farm for the Carroll County Soil Conservation district. Three years ago they installed a Slurrystore system that holds six months worth of manure. "It fit with the contour of the farm, and it's safer than a pit with the children around," said Fern. Grassed waterways have been put in because of the springs that crop up all over the farm. One of the springs has been captured with a cement trough to water the cows.

"This family and our operation is no more important than any other family in Frederick County," stressed Fern, "We're just honored to represent the County. George and I believe our family is our greatest asset, along with our friends we've made over the years."

Center Receives Grant To Evaluate Safety Program

ALEXANDRIA, Va. — The National Farm Medicine Center, Marshfield, Wis., recently received a $500,000 three-year grant from the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH) to evaluate a national program designed to improve safety of adolescents working in agricultural settings.

Under the direction of Barbara Lee, Ph.D., the grant will evaluate Partners for a Safer Community™, a collaborative effort implemented by the National FFA Organization with support from major agricultural corporations.

"We are impressed with the National FFA's willingness to collaborate in this comprehensive evaluation," said Lee.

"It's exciting and challenging to evaluate a national health and safety initiative," said Mary Jo Knobloch, M.P.H., program manager for the National Farm Medicine Center. "Little is known about what works and doesn't work in agricultural safety education for youth."

Partners for a Safer Community is being offered to 4,000 FFA chapters across the U.S. and will be individualized for each community by FFA members working with community leaders to assess local needs. In one community, the safety emphasis may be tornado safety; in another it may be preventing tractor rollovers and in still another the safety program may be geared toward preventing skin cancer.

"Local FFA members will work with a group of community leaders to implement a community assessment," said Randy Bernhardt, team leader for the National FFA Organization. "From assessment results, they decide which safety issues are most important to pursue in their communities."

Partners for a Safer Community will compile and distribute children's safety education training resources to agricultural teachers and community leaders. Its goals are to:

- Increase students' knowledge of safety and health promoting behaviors
- Provide teachers and community leaders with the resources necessary to successfully teach youth safety
- Provide leadership development opportunities for students through active participation in their communities
- Expand the use of existing safety education resources
- Foster ongoing community collaboration for youth safety issues and programs.

The National Farm Medicine Center is a nationally recognized rural health program of Marshfield Clinic and its research and education division. Marshfield Medical Research Foundation. Center researchers did the ground breaking work on farmer's lung and other respiratory diseses in the 1970s and continue to be actively involved in health and safety issues related to agriculture.

Corcoran Named First Jersey Internet Information Manager

REYNOLDSBURG, Ohio — Kaylene Corcoran, Circleville, Ohio has been promoted to the position of Internet information manager for the American Jersey Cattle Association effective Jan. 1.

Corcoran will be responsible for updating and maintaining the association web site at www.usjersey.com

Corcoran has been employed as the assistant information director by the American Jersey Cattle Association since 1995. Her new responsibilities will include development and implementation of new web pages for the AJCA, National All-Jersey and Jersey Marketing Service.

JMS recently held the first cattle auction to be held and accept bids via the internet. Future plans call for expanding the National All-Jersey section, increased information about youth programs, expanded on-line coverage of the Jersey Journal and continued distribution of JMS sale catalogs on-line.

Corcoran is excited about the opportunities available over the internet, "The interest we've seen in our web site has exceeded our expectations. We've been able to provide information such as news releases much more quickly and at less cost than traditional postage. This is especially true with larger items such as the JMS catalogs."

Before coming to AJCA, Corcoran was a quality certification field representative for National DHIA in Columbus, Ohio. Corcoran graduated from Iowa State University with degrees in dairy science and agricultural journalism.

Corcoran lives in Circleville with husband Brian and twin children, Tyler and Madison.

Hardesty Is New MAMMA Chairman

TOWNSON, Md. — A Clarke County, VA dairy farmer is the new chairman of the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association (MAMMA). Elected during MAMMA's 1997 annual meeting, John D. (Jack) Hardesty will lead MAMMA Board of Directors in making key decisions regarding MAMMA's promotion and advertising programs. Other MAMMA officers include Charles E. Schilling from Petersburg, Pa. as vice chairman, John Gillam from Springfield, Va. as treasurer, R. Steven Graybeal from Peach Bottom, Pa. as secretary, and MAMMA CEO Ralph Strock as assistant secretary.

As president of the Maryland/Virginia Milk Producers Cooperative Assoc., Hardesty feels that dairy promotion is the link in keeping milk products in the consumer eye. "I don't know of any other food that holds more value than milk. But if we don't promote it, people won't know about it and they won't buy it. On the farm we can drink about a quart per person a day — the rest we have to sell. Dairy promotion is the lifeblood of the industry."

Hardesty farms Harvue Farms with his sons, Johnny and David, in Berryville, Virginia. Home to 350 Holstein cows, 31 of which are classified Excellent, Harvue Farms boasts a 23,000-lb. herd average and has exported cattle throughout the United States and to 18 other countries. Jack's wife, Carter, and his two daughters-in-law, Cathy and Debbie, are also active on the farm. In 1992, Hardesty was selected as the Dairyman Of The Year at the World Dairy Expo in Madison, Wisconsin. He served as Clarke County supervisor for 30 years, 17 years as chairperson. He is also active on several other boards and serves as board chairperson of the Crums Methodist Church.

Making his living as a dairy farmer, Hardesty knows the importance of the bottom line. He believes that a coordinated and cohesive program between all dairy promotion groups will create the unity needed to increase milk sales in a cost-effective way. With the addition of the 20-cent processor-funded MilkPEP program, noted for its extremely successful milk mustache campaigns, Hardesty believes that "we will see the image of milk continue to become more positive, increasing milk sales."

Hardesty was interested in dairy promotion ever since he first became a director at Maryland/Virginia Milk Producers Cooperative Association. "I'm pleased that for the first time since I've been involved in dairy promotion, the groups have all come together to focus on one common goal — selling more milk. Through mass communications and advertising, the dairy industry has access to every U.S. citizen."

Nationally, with the combination of processor and producer-funded programs, more than $200 million has been contributed to dairy promotion this year. Dairy Management Inc. (DMI) and MilkPEP have coordinated their efforts targeting consumers to "get the most bang for the dairy farmers' buck." MilkPEP's milk mustache print campaign targets adult consumers through magazines and other print ad outlets. DMI targets young consumers through both television and radio advertisements. MAMMA extends both the DMI and MilkPEP campaigns in our area, along with targeting children 6 - 11 with "That Milk Thing" and MAMMA's Kids/Gatekeeper Marketing Program.

As Hardesty explains, "An organized effort and balanced programs will bring our message to every consumer segment. Everyone is a potential milk drinker and potential customer — we need to reach those customers with dairy promotion."

With a consolidation between MAMMA and the regional dairy councils in the Mid-Atlantic area planned for 1998, Hardesty's objective during his tenure as chairman of the MAMMA Board of Directors is to "bring a good organization under one umbrella with the best manager we can find." Hardesty feels that a consolidation will get "the dollars flowing in one direction and toward a strong national program."

To maintain a strong milk demand in the marketplace, Hardesty feels MAMMA must "continue to have a balanced program, be a part of the national effort, and have a strong dairy council presence.

Decoteau To Lead Horticulture Department

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Dr. Dennis R. Decoteau, chair of the horticulture department at Clemson University, will join Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences as head of the Department of Horticulture on Jan. 5.

Dr. Decoteau is widely recognized by his colleagues as an outstanding leader, communicator, mentor and friend," said Robert Steele, dean of the College of Agricultural Sciences. "We're fortunate to have someone of Dr. Decoteau's ability and accomplishment joining our faculty."

The Department of Horticulture conducts educational, research and cooperative extension programs in applied plant science, including but not limited to plant breeding, plant nutrition, consumer horticulture, greenhouse production, flower retailing, vegetable and fruit production, and landscape contracting.

Decoteau is a graduate of the USDA Experiment Station/Academic Committee on Policy (ESCOP/ACOP) Leadership Program and has received significant awards for both research and teaching, including the L.M. Ware Distinguished Research Award from the American Society for Horticultural Science (Southeast Region), and an Outstanding Teacher Award from Clemson.

He also is strongly committed to the land-grant philosophy. "That's important for a faculty member," he said, "particularly in a college of agricultural sciences. Unless we educate the public, they simply won't know the importance of the things we're doing."

To that end, Decoteau writes an industry newsletter column, as well as the triweekly column, "Garden Works," in the Anderson Independent-Mail newspaper in Anderson, S.C.

He also was named Garden Poet of the South Carolina Botanical Garden. "In my columns," he said. "I've tried to use normal, everyday words to describe some of the exciting things that are happening — not just at Clemson, but in the sciences in general."

Decoteau has developed successful partnerships with major U.S. corporations. His two manuals on tropical lettuce production are used worldwide by the McDonald's Corporation. His research on colored reflective mulches resulted in a Canadian patent on the product, with U.S. patent pending.

"We took a common practice that vegetable growers already use — plastic mulch — and improved on it," he explained.

"By changing the colors of the plastic, we can control the color of light reflected back to the plant. Plants respond to different colors in various ways — it's an evolutionary survival mechanism. We trick the plants by choosing a color or blend of colors that signals the kind of growth habit we're after."

Decoteau received his bachelor's degree in environmental studies from the University of Maine at Fort Kent, and his master's and doctorate degrees in plant science/physiology from the University of Massachusetts. After a post-doctoral research position at Purdue University, he moved through the academic ranks to full professorship and was department chair at Clemson.

Dr. Decoteau is widely recognized by his colleagues as an outstanding leader, communicator, mentor and friend," said Robert Steele, dean of the College of Agricultural Sciences. "We're fortunate to have someone of Dr. Decoteau's ability and accomplishment joining our faculty."

"You got a pretty crop of tobacco here," Eric Probst told the sellers. "This is the most tobacco we've ever had on the floor," said Donna Probst. The warehouse in Paradise on Monday held 660,000 pounds, she said.

Tobacco is still a big cash crop. According to the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service in Harrisburg, last year there were 7,000 acres of tobacco grown in Lancaster and 800 in other counties. Total production for Lancaster alone was 13.8 million pounds at a value of $22.6 million.

Tobacco Growers Receive $1.80 A Pound Or More, But Buyers Are Selective At Start Of Auction Season

"The crop looks good this year," he said. "Dry weather is certainly better than too much rain."

He indicated he attended the auction "out of curiosity" and to see what the price floor would be.

Another grower who was transporting two Plain growers from New Holland said the "better stuff" would price at $1.80 a pound. He said the growers had a total of about 50 acres of tobacco for sale.

No auction was held on Wednesday, it was confirmed by Mitch White of Paradise Auction. Also, no auction was scheduled Friday. White indicated Friday morning that an auction was scheduled for the following Monday.

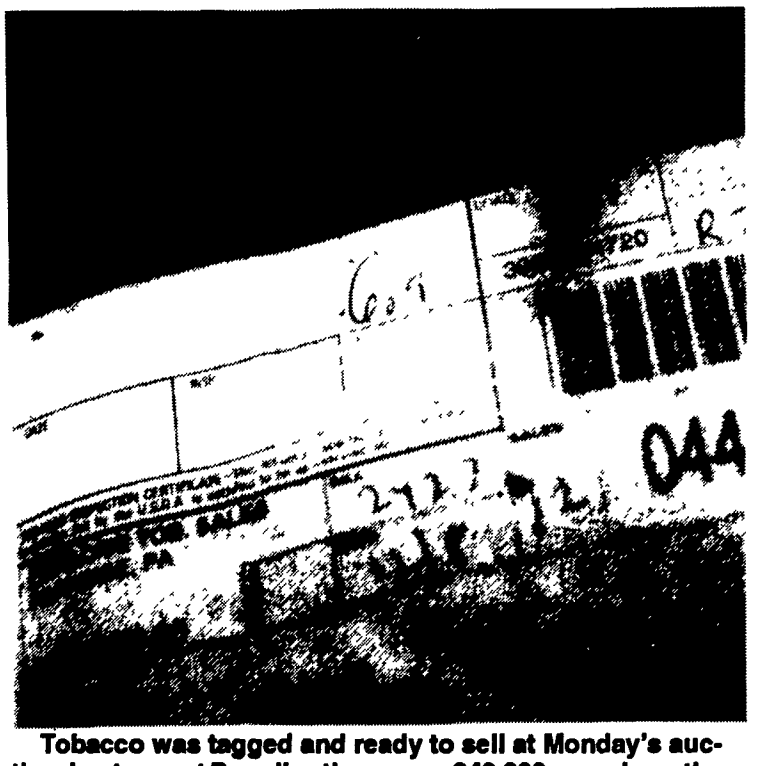
At Monday's auction, one grower didn't understand why, if buyers were offering $1.80 per pound privately, they wouldn't offer mostly the same price for the same grade and quality at the auction. Many growers expected demand to be heavy and were surprised when buyers bid selectively at the auction.

"There aren't too many happy faces today," said one grower, gesturing toward the sellers.

Last year at Paradise there were 340,000 pounds on the floor at the start of the tobacco auction season. Back then, first day's top price was $1.80 per pound.

According to the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service in Harrisburg, last year there were 7,000 acres of tobacco grown in Lancaster and 800 in other counties. Total production for Lancaster alone was 13.8 million pounds at a value of $22.6 million. In Pennsylvania for all tobacco grown, value was $14.5 million for the Pennsylvania type and $10.6 million for Maryland type.

There may be a sale on the Monday before Christmas, according to Donna Probst. After New Year's, sales resume on those three days.



Tobacco was tagged and ready to sell at Monday's auction. Last year at Paradise there were 340,000 pounds on the floor at the start of the tobacco auction season. Back then, first day's top price was $1.80 per pound.

There were close to 200 sellers and six buyers on the floor at the sale Monday. Auctioneer was Mitch Ashby from Burlington, N.C., center.

Technicians Complete Studies

DAVID BIGELOW
Training Coordinator

STATE COLLEGE (Center Co.) — Pa DHIA recently completed another field training seminar of Nov 20, at the Best Western in State College.

Congratulations to Nancy Stewart of Washington County, Eric Vander Mark of Berks County and Konrad Isele of New York for completing their studies. The field training seminar is just one of several steps in the training procedures at Pa. DHIA.

Before attending the four-day field training seminar all new technicians receive initial training.

This training involves working directly with an appointed trainer from Pa. DHIA. All aspects of the testing procedures are covered.

Also included in the initial training is getting familiar with the laptop computer. The overview of responsibilities, sample handling and equipment procedures are covered in depth. Pa. DHIA recognizes the importance of on — farm training to explain how to perform in a parlor herd, pipeline herd as well as a bucket herd.

At this point in the training process, practical situations such as managing a circuit and recognizing a rule infraction are covered.

Communication to both the dairymen and the Pa. DHIA staff is important for a successful circuit. Therefore there is much time spent on how to handle different situations that may arise in the field.

As the trainee completes two weeks of employment, the trainer once again completes another round of training. This involves being together at six different herds where an evaluation takes place to determine if more in-depth training is needed.

The field training seminar follows shortly after the two-week evaluation. The period between the two sessions allows for different situations to arise that bring about more questions

This gives each new technician the exposure they need to gain more experience. This also allows for communication situations between the Pa. DHIA staff and the dairymen on their circuit.

The four-day field training seminar covers in depth the Quick Barn Sheet on the laptop computer. A special emphasis is put on the correct usage of the computer, as well as having each technician become familiar with each option on the option screens.

The correct procedure for starting a new herd and the correct procedures in handling split herds is also taught in this seminar.

Professionalism and also circuit management are taught along with many different examples on how to handle different situations that come up in the barn

An in-depth study of feed and forage is taught along with the different formulas needed to calculate milk price. A special emphasis is placed on the laptop computer at the field training seminar with its constant usage.

Our main objective is to make each technician familiar and comfortable with the laptop computers. During the seminar a tour of the sample and meter lab is included to familiarize each technician with the general operation of each department.

Learning how PTA's are read and interpreting the member's reports are high goals for the week. Each report that the dairyman receives is broken down and covered, so each technician understands the record process.

A time is set aside for discussing the Heifer Management Program and how to fill out the reports.

From the left, Pa.DHIA field technicians at a field training seminar are Konrad Isele of New York; Nancy Stewart of Washington County; and Eric Vander Mark, of Berks County.

At the end of the four-day seminar, a certification exam is given to each technician. This exam allows for the evaluation of each technician and to decide if they may need assistance in the future.

At the six-month point of employment, the region manager conducts an evaluation. The region manager conducts this evaluation with a visit to a farm during the testing operation. It is determined then if the technician is capable of continuing with limited supervision.

A yearly evaluation is conducted to determine the needs of each technician at that point. Part of the yearly evaluation is having ideas from the dairymen within the circuit.

This is accomplished by giving each dairyman the opportunity to fill out a questionnaire for his technician. This information as well as input from the region manager can be helpful in determining each technicians particular needs.

Please feel free to call 1-800-DHI-TEST if we can be of any assistance or join us on the internet web site at http;//www.dhia.psu.edu for more information.

Cooperative Director Institute To Be Held At Penn State

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — New and incumbent directors of cooperatives can sharpen their business and organizational skills by attending the 1998 Pennsylvania Cooperative Director Institute, Jan. 27-29 at the Penn State Conference Center and hotel at Penn State's University Park Campus.

The institute will feature more than 15 sessions and informal discussions on topics such as cooperative finance, legal issues for cooperative directors, developing internal controls and environmental concerns. Speakers will include university specialists, cooperative staff and business leaders.

Samuel Hayes, Pennsylvania secretary of agriculture, and Robert Steele, dean of Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, also will address the participants.

The institute opens with registration at 10 a.m. on Tuesday, Jan. 27, followed by lunch and welcoming comments.

During the afternoon sessions on "director basics," Bruce Anderson, professor of agribusiness management at Cornell University, will focus on roles and responsibilities of the director, as well as cooperatives and their boards; and leadership consultant Gordon Milbrandt will profile "the successful director."

As Tuesday's dinner speaker, Milbrandt will discuss "Identifying Key Elements for Board Governance Controls."

The morning agenda on Wednesday, Jan. 28 will include a breakfast update on the business and regulatory environment by Bill Frantz of Ocean Spray, followed by sessions on cooperative finances and developing goals and strategies.

A panel discussion on leadership dynamics, board actions and strategies for success will highlight the afternoon program. Panel members will include experts from Agri-Link, Dairy Farmers of America, Cooperative Elevator Co. and Kroger Foods, the nation's largest grocery chain.

At Wednesday evening's dinner, keynote speaker Don Dufek, retired vice president of Kroger Foods, will deliver a talk titled, "If You Controlled Your Business from Supply to Consumer, what Would You Do?"

Sessions on Thursday, Jan. 29, will focus on using self-assessment and controls to assure the right results, and legal implications of directorship. The event concludes with an afternoon luncheon and graduation ceremony.

The Pennsylvania Cooperative Director Institute is supported by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture and organized by Penn State's Cooperative Business Education and Research Program. Since 1983, 344 cooperative directors and 72 management leaders have graduated from the institute.

640 Attend Lebanon Farm-City Celebration Banquet

The Werners's 109-acre farm dates back in family ownership to at least 1892.

According to the family, efforts to locate the land transfer records that first put the farm in the Werner family possession were fruitless. However, they noted that Lewis Werner's great grandparents, Josiah and Mary Shirk, did purchase the farm in 1892 at the latest, and may have taken possession as early as 1865.

Their daughter Annie married Grant Bordner and the couple purchased the farm from Josiah and Mary Shirk.

According to a history provided by the family, "Upon the untimely death of Grant Bordner, the farm returned to the estate of Mary Shirk."

From there, the farm was purchased by Lewis Werner's grandparents Milton and Ellen Shirk Werner. Lewis's parents, Lewis Sr. and Mary Haldeman Werner, purchased the farm upon their marriage on April 1, 1925.

On May 20, 1976, Lewis aquired the farm while Mary continued to live there. Their daughter Susan and husband Calvin Miller also lived their until 1994.

Currently Susan and Calvin Miller rent the pastureland and barn. Lewis and Janet Werner's son Jeffrey and his wife Susan farm the cropland.

Those three generations were born on the farm.

"The Werner's are grateful the farm has remained in the family over 105 years and are proud to receive this recognition on behalf of all the previous caretakers of this Century Farm," the family said in a statement.

For entertainment, Cara Giambrone, a weekend news anchor for a local television station, and an amateur actor, singer and dancer, sang several seasonal selections.

After that, the audience heard Lebanon County Farm-City Program job exchange participants tell about their experiences this summer.

Annville green bean farmer Ronald Copenhaver and Country Fare Restaurant general manager Douglas Horst exchanged jobs, as did Renee Swank, president of Limestone Springs Trout Farm, and Diana Hartman, president of COMP Assist.

The stories told included anecdotal and somewhat humorous experiences of initial surprise, then learning and understanding, and eventually to a new-found respect and appreciation for the work of the other.

They all said they have become friends through the experience, and as a special tribute, Diana Hartman and Doug Horst created and had printed and distributed with the banquet programs, a special tribute to their "farmer" exchange partners.

The tribute includes a recipe each for trout and green beans, as well as facts and tips about each commodity. On the back, the two "city" partners wrote:

To Ron & Renee,

We extend our sincere thanks for giving us the opportunity to share in the life of the agricultural business world.

We thank you for reminding us that the success of any business begins with a true love for the work involved and an appreciation for the gifts of land, sunshire and life.

Seeing green beans grow in the fields and trout mature into food for nourishment has been an experience we will long remember. Thank you for sharing your business life with us.

Our thanks also, to the Lebanon Valley Chamber of Commerce-Farm City Committee for inviting us to participate in this wonderful job exchange experience.

From the left, Lewis and Janet Werner receive a Century Farm Award from Dennis Grumbine, director of the Pennsylvania State Farm Show, representing the Pa. Department of Agriculture. The Werner's 109-acre farm dates back in family ownership to at least 1892.

Catered by Eli's, the help-yourself buffet lines at Lebanon Farm-City Banquet offered a full plate of choices.

Lebanon County Farm-City Program job exchange participants are, from the left, Ronald Copenhaver, Douglas Horst, Renee Swank, and Diana Hartman.

From the left, Lebanon Farm-City Program Committee co-chairman Jodi Loose presents a prize award to Allysa Smith, the Farm-City coloring contest winner.

Is Whole Cottonseed A Good Feed Alternative?

GEORGE F. W. HAENLEIN
Extension Dairy Specialist
University of Delaware

NEWARK, Del. — Given the kind of extreme drought damage of forages, silage corn and hay fields that we have had this year, the dairy farmer's survival strategy turns to finding the most economical alternative feeds.

Planting winter forages in areas with favorable fall field moisture and climates is one way. Buying hay and alternative feeds is another. Two concerns govern the decision-price and the overall physical form of the feeding ration.

You cannot just substitute missing forages with commercial feeds if they do not have sufficient amounts of long fiber.

The health of all ruminant dairy animals — cows, goats and sheep — depends on their chewing long fiber as part of their daily feeding ration. This is an absolute requirement. Nothing will substitute for a minimum of 17 percent fiber in the daily ration, and a minimum of 15 to 20 percent of the daily feed intake must be more than 1.5 inches long.

In an Oklahoma study, researchers compared ground alfalfa hay and pelleted grain ration with a typical silage-plus-grain ration. The incidence of displaced abomasum — twisted stomach after calving that required surgery to save the cows — was 17.4 percent on the ground alfalfa plus pellets ration vs. 1.6 percent on the traditional silage plus grain ration.

Lack of minimum fiber length in the ration means reduced chewing by the dairy animals, which leads to insufficient saliva supply and buffering rumen fermentation, faster passage of rumen contents, less fill of the rumen and decrease of its motility.

These conditions combine to provide a greater chance for migration of the abomasum at a time after calving, kidding or lambing when feed intake, typically, is already at a lower level.

In preparing a TMR ration, do not mix for too much time; this reduces fiber length in the final ration, even when hay initially had a good amount of long fibers.

Some commercial feeds provide fiber and length of fiber.

In this area, the best-known alternative to forage shortage in a dairy ration is whole cottonseed. Its crude fiber, neutral detergent-fiber and acid detergent-fiber contents (dry matter basis) are 21, 44 and 34 percent, although the fiber length is not as much as in baled hay.

However, cottonseed has beed used with good success as a partial forage substitute. Whole cottonseed has 24 percent protein and 23 percetn fat contents, making it also an excellent enery and protein supplement.

Sunflower seed is another suitable commercial alternative with even more fiber: 24 percent crude fiber, 22 percent protein and the very high 34 percent fat content.

When are these alternatives a good buy?

The decision must be based on a number of factors, including supplying the necessary missing forage fiber as well as the nutrient content in energy and protein relative to other alternatives. Palatability, commercial availability and safety (in the case of cottonseed, this means freedom from molds) also must be considered.

The relative nutrient content can be calculated by entering the so-called corn and soybean oilmeal factors, according to the "Petersen method," which compares energy and protein contents of the alternative feed relative to the contents in corn and soybean oilmeal and their prices. The factors for whole cottonseed are .8 (relative to corn) and .3 (relative to soybean oilmeal).

Multiplied with current prices for corn and soybean oilmeal and then totaled, these factors give a value of $174.80/ton, which is the "opportunity price" for whole cottonseed as an alternative feed.

This means that whole cottonseed bought at less than $174.80/ton is a good bargain nutritionally compared to corn and soybean oilmeal.

Conversely, if it costs more than $174.80/ton, it is too expensive.

This is definitely the case in this country for sunflower seed. The factors for sunflower seed are similar to cottonseed, but the price is much higher. When I visited Romania recently, I saw a lot of sunflower seed feeding, because the price there was much lower.

Of course, what corn and soybean oilmeal factors do not calculate is the value for fiber content and fiber length. We simply do not yet have a formula that combines all three factors for quick manual calculation other than computer least-cost ration programs, for which you must have the necessary equipment or a consultant.

The corn and soybean oilmeal factors were developed to help find the most economical alternative grain supplements irrespective of fiber content.

However, straw (even corn stover) is an excellent fiber source if mixed at limited levels with high energy and high protein feeds and is usually very economical.

In foreign countries, I have seen a lot of straw feeding, often in excess, because it's cheap; the result is low production.

So, for winter feeding plans in this drought year, you must calculate feed values and prices to find the best alternative for the best net income on your dairy farm.

Clean, Comfortable Cows Mean Better Productivity For Two Herd Management Winners

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — It may have seemed like preaching to the choir, but at the Berks DHIA meeting here Tuesday afternoon, successful dairy producers "relearned" some best management practices that ensure a better herd and a better milk check.

At the banquet, cow and herd awards went out to members of the county organization. There were 110 registered for the event.

Clyde Myers, Berks County agent, gave a slide presentation that looked at some of the ways two 1996 Herd Management Award winners rely on tried-and-true farm practices that lay groundwork for the future of the industry.

One farm is the dairy operated by Melvin and Twila Oberholtzer, north of Stouchsburg, and their children Anthony, Katrina, Michael, Melvin Jr., Travis, Wendell, and Kenton.

According to Myers, last year the Clover Farms Producer scored 140 total herd points in the Herd Management Award contest, where they "excelled in production, improving somatic cell count (SCC), and age at first calving." The farm comprises 132 acres (120 tillable). They farm 80 acres of corn (30 acres in corn silage and 50 in high moisture ear corn). The other 40 acres are in alfalfa.

Melvin was raised on the farm and he and Twila rented the farm beginning in 1984. They purchased the property in 1991.

The 67 milk cows, eight dry cows, and 65 young stock are fed a TMR ration. Plastic wrap bags store corn silage and a new silo for high moisture ear corn was erected in 1995. Using DHIA records, the TMR is is set for 80 pounds of production.

Topdressing up to 110 pounds is part of the program. The ration includes on an as-fed basis: 44 pounds corn silage, 32 pounds haylage, 16 pounds high moisture ear corn, and a protein supplement.

Calves are started in a kennel structure. Heifers are raised in the bank barn, where they are divided into groups to dry cows and older heifers, which have access to large pasture areas. A new addition of a 32-cow tiestall barn has helped greatly in cow comfort. A new milk house and manure storage area was built. The addition also allowed for tunnel ventilation, which was incorporated into the facilities in 1996.

Cow comfort has been helped by the installation of mattresses in 1995. "Dairy cows need a comfortable resting place to digest forages," Myers noted. In every category, Myers said, individual attention to nutrition and animal comfort are keys to increasing production.

The Oberholtzers milk three times a day. "They feel that advantages include increased milk production by an average of 10 pounds per cow, lower SCCs, and better udder health," said Myers. Milking times are 5:30 a.m., 1:30 p.m., and 9:30 p.m.

Plans for the future include an open bedded packed front heifer barn to be added to the east side of the oldest part of the barn, said Myers. This will allow more grouping of heifers and a larger dry cow/calving area.

Similar work to ensure cow comfort has been under way at the second dairy farm recognized Tuesday, the Bethany Dairy Farm at the Bethany Children's Home south of Womelsdorf. Farm manager Henry High and helper James Horning used increases in production and improvement in the somatic cell count to tally a 115 herd score.

The farm includes 120 tillable acres. Forty are used for alfalfa haylage and hay, 62 acres for corn silage and ear corn, and 18 acres for soybeans.

"They attribute TLC — tender, loving care — as the reasons for their recent success," said Myers.

The first area of TLC is cow comfort. Tunnel ventilation was installed in the fall of 1996. "Cows that are cooler in the summer do not experience the summer drop," said Myers, "and total milk production has increased." Mattresses were placed in the tiestall barn in March this year. Shredded rubber in pillows gives all cows maximum comfort.

Stalls have been recently redone to aid in cow comfort and cleanliness.

Nutrition, said Myers, also has played a large part in the production increases. Working closely with their nutritionist, they use a TMR fed for 100 pounds of production. No topdress is used, to save time and labor. The TMR ration on a dry-matter basis consists of 19 pounds ground ear corn, 14 pounds of haylage, 14 pounds of protein supplement, and seven pounds of corn silage. All hay is fed to young stock.

Mangers are cleaned before each milking to assure cows are consuming fresh TMR. A separate dry cow ration is fed in the outside bunk area.

Myers indicated that cleanliness has aided in overall health and improving SCC. The farm uses shredded newspapers the past six years, which has helped to keep cows and udders clean. Cows are bedded twice each day. Stalls are cleaned twice each day and cow trainers are adjusted regularly. Gutters are heavily bedded.

"Henry and Jim have learned that clean tails mean cleaner cows," said Myers.

To lower SCCs, DHIA records are used to determine milking order. Cows with the highest somatic cell count are milked last. Cows are moved each month after review of SCC scores.

To help with udder health, a strict milking routine involves cow stripping before predipping with an iodine solution, and careful wiping down of teats and udder. Milkers use gloves to defray from spreading mastitis bacteria.

"Producing quality young stock is important at Bethany," Myers said.

Prewean calves are raised in specially built kennels for individual care. Each calf has an outside runway and individual feed and water areas. Caretakers can do daily chores out of the weather. A group hutch helps in the transition to the first social groups. Myers noted that older heifers are raised in the second barn near the home farm.

"Henry and Jim feel strongly that nutrition, cow comfort, and constant milking and udder health routines have improved both production and somatic cell counts," said Myers.

Myers noted that the Berks County Dairy Day is scheduled Wednesday, Jan. 7, at the ag center. Three dairy companies will speak about milk purchasing, including two nearby processors and the Land O'Lakes cooperative. Cow comfort and new dairy facilities will also be program topics. Contact the extension office in Leesport at (610) 378-1327 for more information.

At the banquet, Jim Boyer, Pa.DHIA data processing manager, reviewed the various aspects of the nitrogen management analysis report. He provided an overview of how true protein results on the test are identified and used. He also provided the Internet site for Pa.DHIA: http://www.dhia.psu.edu. The web page provides information on the MUN and true protein resources of Pa.DHIA.

Also, the new heifer program will be demonstrated at the Ag Computing and Electronics Expo in Lancaster on Dec. 17.

Production awards were presented at the banquet. For individual cow awards, high lifetime milk went to Glenn Howard, Oley, for "Sheba." at 256,305 pounds. High lifetime protein went to Earl Hafer and Sons, Douglassville, for "402" at 8,291 pounds.

The David and Effie Spicher family from Belleville received the Farm Family Business Award. The Spicher's started dairy farming in 1959 with 40 cows. Now, sons Keith and Kent help their father operate the 150-cow Kish-View Farm. Mifflin County Extension Director Dave Filson presented the award.

Nittany Media, Incorporated, of Lewistown received the City Family Business Award. Harry and Anna Hain accepted a plaque presented by Robert Richards, president of the Lewistown Kiwanis. The Haim family provides media services through cable television, radio and other enterprises.

Although not at the banquet, County Committeeman Ken Loft was recognized for 35 years of service.

Nourishment of all kinds take place around the dinner table. That's when barriers break down, talk flows, friendships develop and common ground is found. Rev. Richard W. Bender spoke at the banquet. His rural and urban audience heard of the importance of developing friendships around the table just as Jesus interacted with people while eating.

Mifflin County Dairy Princess Marlene Smith introduced her alternate Megan Gross, then told the crowd of their duties in promoting diary products. The two have participated in over 70 promotions since June and have planned some high school basketball half-time activities.

The Hain family, owners of Nittany Media, Inc. in Lewistown, received the City Family Business Award as part of the Mifflin County Farm-City program. Left to right are Jonathan, Penny, Kari, Julie, Pauline, Allison, Michael, Harry and Anna.

Farm Service Agency leader Donna Snook received recognition for 35 years of service. Frank Bonson attempted to list all that Snook has accomplished over the years while serving agriculture and the community. Her response was simply, "All prayers need feet!"

Adams County 4-H Dairy Club Honors Member Achievements

JINNY WILT
Adams Co. Correspondent

NEW CHESTER (Adams Co.) — Christine Emden of Hessen, Germany, an alumnus of the International Youth 4-H Exchange program, was the featured speaker at the recent awards banquet of the Adams County 4-H Dairy Club, held in New Chester.

The 24-year-old was visiting the United States for six months as part the international exchange program, and was staying with Kevin and Karen Holtzinger of East Berlin (Adams County) when she served as banquet speaker, just before returning home to Germany.

After describing her family dairy farm, she commented on some of the differences she noted between how Germany manages its dairy production with how regulation of the United States dairy industry has developed.

She said that Germany is the largest milk producer in Europe, and that she believes dairy farmers in the United States would benefit from a milk quota system, as is done in Germany.

In regular banquet business, a number of awards were presented following the meal.

The junior outstanding member of the Adams County 4-H Dairy Club was Molly Van Lieu of East Berlin.

The intermediate-age division outstanding member was Shannon Holtzinger of East Berlin.

The senior-age outstanding member was Jesse Murren of New Oxford. The awards were presented by Jesse's grandfather, Tom Murren.

The Mevlin R. Durboraw Memorial (club) Member Award was presented to Josh Ramsburg of Barlow, while Tom Brown received the Melvin R. Durboraw Memorial (club) Leader Award.

Recognition was also made of youth whose animals performed well in the showring.

The club presented best-bred and owned awards by breed to Chase Rhodes for his Brown Swiss, Jesse Murren for a Guernsey, Kenny Wenger among the Holstein owners, and Carrie Stevens with a Jersey.

Feed tubs and a show halter were presented to club showmanship contest winners, according to youth age division. Bradley Campbell was the top junior showman, Mollie Van Lieu was the top intermediate-aged showman, while Carrie Stevens was first among senior-age members.

Campbell also received recognition as the top juinor fitter, and earned a show box.

In 4-H Project Book competition, rosettes were presented to Charles Brown, Carrie Carroll, Amand Clowney, Clinton Grim, Shannon Holtzinger, Zach Nell, Melanie Wenger, and Carl Wilkinson.

Blue ribbons for project books were presented to Elizabeth Brown, Bradley Campbell, Angie Hoffman, Jesse Murren, Jonathan Murren, Joshua Ramsburg, Cody Schandelmeier, Mollie Van Lieu, Jacob Waybright, Kenny Wenger, Kevin Wenger, Jason Wolf, Clayton Wood, and Derek Zepp.

Recognition was also made based on the number of years the members completed projects. Members received pins symbolizing as much.

Holstein Association®

NEWS RELEASE

Brattleboro, Vt. - At the recent Holstein Association Board of Directors meeting in Tucson, Ariz., several changes were approved regarding registry fees. The Board made several decisions concerning registration prices, Start-Up prices for the restructured herdbook, and two new programs.

Details on the registry fees follow:

Special Registry Pricing

From January 1, 1998 through June 30, 1998, Special Registry Pricing will be in effect to encourage breeders to stay caught up on regular registry activity. The State & National and National member rates are much lower than current fees for older animals. During this six-month period fees will be as follows:

Age	State & National	National	Non-Member
Under 3 mos.	$ 6	$ 12	$ 18
3-5 mos.	$ 10	$ 15	$ 20
6-8 mos.	$ 15	$ 20	$ 25
9-11 mos.	$ 15	$ 20	$ 30
12-14 mos.	$ 15	$ 20	$ 35
15-17 mos.	$ 15	$ 20	$ 40
18-20 mos.	$ 15	$ 20	$ 45
21-23 mos.	$ 15	$ 20	$ 50
24 + mos.	$ 15	$ 20	$ 100 Females $ 200 Males (plus blood-typing expenses to verify parentage)

Dead Females over 23 months = $10 (regardless of membership status)

Start-Up Program

Fees for starting new animals in the redesigned herdbook are very favorable. To receive these fees, you must be a National Member. The Start-Up fees are $6 per animal, regardless of age. The Association will do a computer search to find ancestors for an additional $1 per animal being applied for. This can increase the % RHA of the animal being applied for. If the search uncovers Registered or Qualified animals in the lineage, then Recovery fees apply. However, from January 1, 1998 through December 31, 1998 a cap of $50 will be placed on registering an animal and its maternal ancestors as part of the Start-Up Program.

Recovery Program

The Herd Catch-Up program expires on December 31, 1997. Effective January 1, 1998 through June 30, 1998, a new Recovery Program will be in effect for breeders to recover animals that they have not registered on a timely basis. Unlike the previous Catch-Up Program, breeders do not have to register all animals to qualify for these special prices. The fees for the new Recovery Program, which are very favorable, are as follows:

Dairy Farmers Of America Begin Operation January 1

ORLANDO, Fla. — Dairy Farmers of America (DFA), a new nationwide dairy marketing cooperative is ready to open for business January 1, according to cooperative leaders who held a news conference here today. The new cooperative, serving nearly 22,000 dairy farmer members in 42 states, is being formed by the consolidation of Associated Milk Producers Inc., Southern Region; Mid-American Dairymen Inc.; Milk Marketing Inc.; and Western Dairymen Cooperative Inc.

Speaking on behalf of dairy farmers, DFA chairman designate Herman Brubaker noted that each of the four cooperatives had completed presentation of the consolidation proposals to their members and delegates. All four cooperatives voted in favor of the consolidation by significant margins. Brubaker also reported DFA held its first official event on Monday evening preceeding the opening of the National Milk Producers Federation (NMPF) annual meeting in Orlando.

Gary Hanman, president and chief executive officer of Dairy Farmers of America, joined Brubaker in fielding questions from journalists attending the meeting. "The voting is complete and the consolidation now awaits final review of the Department of Justice antitrust division," said Hanman. "We're working on management structure and will announce the management team by next week."

Hanman and Brubaker said a high priority in coming weeks would be to finalize the member governance structure for the cooperative. DFA has divided the United States into six "area councils." "Our goal in developing the member governance structures is to involve members at every level, so the organization is small in the country, even though we will have a large presence in the marketplace," said Brubaker.

Hanman said one of the first orders of business will be to implement cost savings that result from economies of scale and combining operations. "We see real opportunities for savings in hauling and some plant consolidation, especially where plants are operating only seasonally," said Hanman. "Our goal is to reduce costs by at least $20 million within the next three years."

Hanman also said DFA will be looking at new ways to help members reduce risk by using the futures market. He said the new cooperative's broad geographic and product base should help improve price stability for members, but he said members should not expect the cooperative to single-handedly raise prices. "Long-range, we would hope to help members make more money in the dairy business through value-added processing, by becoming a major player in the export market and through branded dairy product sales."

Brubaker said each of the consolidating cooperatives has a position on the Federal market order reform issue. "One of our first orders of business will be to look at the whole issue of market order reform and develop a DFA policy on this matter," said Brubaker. "Our positions are similar now, so I anticipate that, after some discussion and debate, we will have a unified position on where we want market orders to be in the future."

Dairy Farmers of America will have its first corporate board meeting in Kansas City on Dec. 29 and 30, 1997.

pork. INDUSTRY SPOTLIGHT

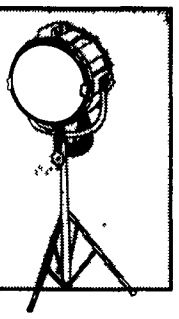
from the National Pork Producers Council



The U.S. pork industry introduced an innovative program at the 1997 World Pork Expo last summer designed to address an environmental challenge facing pork production throughout the nation: odor.

This On-Farm Odor Assistance Program began on 24 farms in four pilot states in October, and is scheduled to be launched across the country in the spring of 1998 to help producers identify specific on-farm odor problems and suggest appropriate engineering, biological or other management solutions.

"We are the first agricultural organization to offer an environmental program of this kind," says Bob Uphoff, a Wisconsin pork producer and chairman of the On-Farm Odor Assistance Committee. "This program helps demonstrate the U.S. pork industry's commitment to maintaining environmental quality."

A special two-hour satellite broadcast to overview the program and explain how producers may participate will be carried Tuesday, February 10 at 7 p.m. C.S.T. It is sponsored by the National Pork Producers Council (NPPC) in association with the National Pork Board and PORK'98 magazine.

The satellite broadcast's audio will be simulcast on DTN On Air, a free service to current subscribers of the DTN electronic market and information service (color versions only). This will be the first time a national agricultural commodity organization has transmitted a live program over DTN.

The satellite broadcast on Feb. 10 will be presented in a TV news magazine format. Prerecorded segments will feature pork producers who have participated in an on-farm assessment. They will tell how they have incorporated what they learned to save money and minimize odor.

The broadcast will also include interviews with specialists conducting the on-farm visits. Satellite viewers will have the opportunity to call in questions during the broadcast. Panelists will answer questions during the final 30 minutes of the program.

Those who preregister to view the satellite broadcast will receive a packet containing information to be presented by the panelists, reference materials on odor and management and available financial sources to implement operation improvements.

To register for the broadcast, call toll free 1-888-919-6772.

Those interested in listening to the live audio simulcast on DTN On Air are also encouraged to preregister. All registrants will receive a free information packet to follow along with the two-hour program. Registration by Jan. 15 will guarantee delivery of materials prior to the broadcast.

Maryland 4-H Judges In Regional Contests

COLLEGE PARK, Md. – Maryland's 4-H livestock, dairy cattle and poultry judging teams have completed their early fall round of regional and national competition.

Here's the early fall roundup of results:

Livestock

• Eastern National Livestock Show at Timonium, Md.:

Maryland's "A" team placed ninth overall in a field of 11 state 4-H and FFA teams on September 28. The Maryland team was fourth in total reasons and third in both swine and sheep reasons. (Virginia's FFA team was the overall winner.)

David Gordon, 16, of Middletown (Frederick County) starred for Maryland by placing third among individual contestants in overall reasons. He was fourth in swine reasons, tenth in beef placings and 15th overall.

Sarah A. Roberts, 16, of Bryantown (Charles County) was the ninth-place individual in both swine judging and swine reasons and 11th in sheep placings and reasons. Sarah was 18th overall. She is the reigning Maryland Farm Queen.

Jessica Stevens, 15, of Johnsville placed sixth in sheep reasons. Jennifer Biser, 15, of New Midway was the fourth Maryland team member. Both are eastern Frederick County residents.

• Keystone International Livestock Exposition, Harrisburg, Pa.:

Maryland's "A" team placed fourth overall in a field of 12 state 4-H and FFA teams on October 4. The team was second in total reasons. (Virginia's 4-H team was the overall winner.)

Sarah Roberts was the Maryland star in this contest. Sarah placed first among all contestants in swine judging, second in beef cattle judging and second overall. She tied for sixth in reasons.

David Gordon tied with Sarah for sixth-place in reasons. He was seventh overall. Other team members were Jessica Stevens, 36th overall, and David Nuenke, 16, of Glenwood (Howard County), who placed 29th overall.

Maryland's "A" team competed Nov. 18 in the National 4-H Livestock Judging Contest at Louisville. Karen Holloway of Darlington is the team coach. Her assistant is Ned Sayre of Churchville. Both are adult 4-H volunteers from Harford County.

A Maryland "B" team competed in late October at Blacksburg, Va., in two events – the Eastern U.S. stockmen's contest on October 24 and the Eastern U.S. junior livestock judging contest on October 25. Both events were held in the livestock judging pavilion on the Virginia Tech campus.

The "B" team includes Jennifer Biser, 15, of New Midway and Elyssa Hevner, 15, of Johnsville, both eastern Frederick County residents. Also, Stephanie Braun, 17, of Country Lakes and Beth Ann House, 15, of La Plata. Stephanie lives in St. Mary's County; but both are Charles County 4-H members. All four "B" team members had opportunity for practice during the Eastern National Livestock Show at Timonium on Sept. 28.

The "B" team coaches are Kathy Gordon of Jefferson (Frederick County) and Bonnie Boydel of Bel Alton (Charles County).

Dairy Cattle

• Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show at Harrisburg, Pa.:

Maryland placed sixth overall among 17 state teams on September 22 in the 4-H division. The team placed first in both Guernsey and Holstein judging, as well as in oral reasons. It was ninth in Jersey judging and eleventh in both the Brown Swiss and Ayrshire classes. (Virginia, Ohio and Pennsylvania were the top three teams, in that order.)

Amanda Shahan, 17, of Pylesville (Harford County) was the Maryland team star. Amanda placed first in oral reasons among 67 contestants and second in both the Guernsey and Holstein classes. She finished 16th overall.

Beki Miller, 17, of Shawsville was third in oral reasons, seventh in Holstein judging, eighth in Guernseys and tenth overall. She is a Baltimore county 4-H member who resides in Harford County.

Maryland placed sixth overall among 34 state teams in the National 4-H Dairy Cattle Judging Contest on September 30 at Madison. The team was first in Brown Swiss judging, third in oral reasons, fourth in Holstein judging and eighth in Jerseys.

(A Texas team won the event for the first time in the contest's 76-year history. Pennsylvania, Colorado, Ohio and Virginia followed, in that order. Maryland has won the contest 26 times – most recently in 1995.)

Amanda Shahan again led the Maryland team, placing first among 132 contestants in Brown Swiss judging. She was sixth in Holstein judging, twelfth in oral reasons and 19th overall.

Beki Miller was second in Brown Swiss judging, third in Guernseys, 20th in oral reasons and eleventh overall. Emily Rutledge placed 20th in three breed classes – Ayrshire, Brown Swiss and Jerseys. She was 51st overall.

Ryan Downey placed fiftieth in the overall standings, one point ahead of Emily Rutledge.

Coaching the Maryland team were Bill Schnebly of Dry Run (Washington County) and J. Lee Majeskie of Calverton (Prince George's County). Dr. Majeskie is a University of Maryland Extension dairy herd management specialist.

A second Maryland 4-H team competed November 8-10 in the invitational youth dairy judging contest at Louisville, Ky. Members of that team are Mike Creek, 16, of Hagerstown (Washington County); Jenna Rinehart, 15, of Taneytown (Carroll County); Barbara Schenning, 16, of Creswell (Harford County); and Amanda Valentine, 15, of Emmitsburg (Frederick County).

Their coach is Dr. Mark Varner, a dairy science extension specialist at the University of Maryland, College Park.

Holiday Cheese Log can be made ahead of time to eliminate the last minute rush when entertaining guests.

Dazzle Guests With These Festive Holiday Dishes

Holiday Butter Biscotti can become even more festive by turning it into Pistachio-Poppy Seed Biscotti. Make biscotti as below, substituting pistachio nuts for walnuts, deleting rosemary and adding ¼ cup poppy seeds.

HOLIDAY BUTTER BISCOTTI

2¼ cups all-purpose flour
½ cup granulated sugar
2 tablespoons yellow cornmeal
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 egg
½ cup sour cream
8 tablespoons butter, cut into pieces, softened
¾ cup coarsely chopped, toasted, walnuts or pecans
1 teaspoon dried rosemary, crushed

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Combine flour, sugar, cornmeal, baking powder, and salt in mixing bowl. Mix in egg and sour cream. Mix in butter and stir in walnuts and rosemary. Knead dough on floured surface several times, let stand, cover for 5 minutes. Cut dough in half. Form each half into flattened log, about 12 inches long and 3 inches wide, on greased cookie sheet. Bake until lightly browned, 20 to 25 minutes. Cool on baking sheet on wire rack 10 minutes or until cool enough to handle easily. Diagonally cut dough into ½ -inch slices. Place slices (cut side down) on a cookie sheet. Bake until very lightly browned, 10 to 15 minutes on each side. Cool on wire racks. Store in airtight container. Makes about 2½ dozen.

Note: Biscotti can be frozen up to 2 months.

HOLIDAY CHEESE LOG

¾ cup finely chopped parsley
¼ cup chopped roasted pecans
¼ cup finely chopped red pepper
3-ounces light cream cheese, softened
4 ounces blue cheese, crumbled
6 hard-cooked eggs, finely chopped
2 tablespoons finely chopped green onions
1 garlic clove, minced
1 dash red pepper sauce

In small bowl, combine first three ingredients. Set aside. In medium bowl, beat cream cheese and blue cheese until blended. Stir in eggs, onions, garlic, and red pepper sauce until blended.

Shape mixture into a 10-inch log. Roll in reserved parsley mixture. Cover and chill at least two hours. Serve with crackers. Makes about 2 cups.

"C'mon, Monk. C'mon out."

During the warm months, our housecat spends much of her time outdoors, watching birds from the back porch, lounging in a spot of sunlight, often trekking behind me to the garden.

But when the outside temperature drops below about 70 degrees, this aging, pudgy, black-and-white feline claims the fuzzy blanket on the couch as her domain, pretty much parking herself there for the duration. She abandons her chosen spot for cat food and litter box stops, an occasional round of chase-the-yarn and any opportunity to snag a spot in a willing lap. At lease once a day, unless the weather is absolutely horrible, she gets put outside a least briefly-like it or not-in an effort to prevent her from becoming a total couch-potato pussycat.

As much as Monk dislikes cold, wet, and snowy weather, she disdains other animals even more. So, one evening last week, when she paraded to the basement, as we carried in wood for the stove, and poked her head around the open door, I coaxed her to come outside for a bit in the fresh air.

"C'mon Monk, there aren't any other cats out here."

Meeoooww. The low sound came from off to the side of the porch.

"Wanna' bet?" asked The Farmer.

From a shadowy corner of the porch, under the picnic table, emerged the dark form of another cat. Monk shrank behind the door and disappeared up the steps.

"Midnight, where have you been? I didn't see you all day."

Midnight is the stray that we coaxed to the yard one Sunday evening in late summer, after hearing his loud crying from the weedy overgrowth of the asparagus patch. And not only did he gobble up catfood, milk-and the homemade bologna we used as the convincing argument to trust us but he pleased to be petted. Not held, thank you. Just petted and stroked, while he rolled on his back in obvious pleasure.

We've always been pushovers for black cats. This nearly-grown youngster had the potential to be a beauty, though gaunt and scuffed up when he arrived. Under his right eye was an ugly wound, likely the result of battling some feisty quarry on the cat food chain.

In the ensuing months, sort of truce of toleration has been struck among the animals which claim rights to our yard. Midnight's cardboard box fitted with an old quilted shirt is now in the distant, dark corner of the porch, sheltered from a neighbor's pair of curious dogs that often check out his food dish. If the pups get too pesky, he just climbs high up in the woodshed, out of sight and reach, which no doubt irritates the cat-chasing pair.

The ribs-showing, wounded Midnight is now sleek, well-muscled and solid under his shining black coat, with no signs of former injury. And he has become trusting enough that he almost waits to be held, though he still prefers to roll over on his back and have his soft, satiny underbelly rubbed.

But neither inside or outside cat will yet tolerate the other. Monk might go outside if Midnight's not around. His presence is, probably, a good excuse to slink back to the fuzzy warmth of her blanket. And if she does show up, he high-tails it off the porch.

"Here kitty, kitty, kitty," I called a few evenings later, returning from the barn after dark. Midnight had not been around all day, again.

A very faint "meow" answered, then ripping around the side of the house came...a big furry, orange cat.

An orange cat? Where did that come from" Though orange cats are not our farm favorites, this one was a beauty, fat, furry and appearing tame, but cautious. The sound of a handful of catfood pouring into a ceramic dish was enough to bring him to my ankles and begin purring as he sampled the handout.

No sign of Midnight And Monk had fled upstairs, seeking safe refuge on our couch blanket.

With all these cats about, why does our basement reek with the smell of a dead mouse somewhere in the wall?

What Do We Keep?

Over the last couple of weeks, my family has been doing an activity with which I imagine many of you have done. As part of some household renovations, we have been sorting through the contents of many boxes and bags that found their way to the garage and took up permanent residence. Our collection began 10 years ago, when we purchased and moved into our home; many of the boxes are still as the movers had wrapped them, with an additional ten years of clutter from Air Force and collect life. Added to the pile were old baby furniture and toys (too good to pitch!) and the ever-present bags of 2-liter bottles and aluminum cans that we meant to recycle.

It's been rather like a treasure hunt-open the next box, see if it holds those pillows you've been looking for, or another pile of 1970s-vintage clothes. Open the next box, and wonder why you'd saved all those old salad dressing bottles...

Half way through the project, it occurred to me that we were doing exactly what most communities do, or should do, as they make way for changes. Just as we were going through and discarding the things that really don't have value, so the residents of townships and boroughs need to weed through all the things that have been kept because they've always been there to come up with the things that are truly keepers. The keepers are the things that, whether we know it or not, we always were looking for, or assumed were some place in the confusion. They are things we count onto be there now, and in the future. In the language of Sustainable "Community Development", these things are called sacred places.

Sacred places may be historic buildings, or uninterrupted farmlands, or the general store at the crossroads. Although we may never have looked at them that way, as soon as we are asked to defend why they are keepers, most sacred placed have an emotion tied to them that goes beyond words. They are important, and often need to remain for emotional reasons that words can't express. They are like the hatchet we found between some old bed pillows.

In the past 10 years, we borrowed or did without a hatchet when one was sorely needed. We could have gone out and bought a new one, but we knew the old one was somewhere around, and couldn't bring ourselves to replace it needlessly. We talked about the hatchet, on occasion, wondering aloud which box it was in, and when it was finally found, what a happiness...Over a hatchet? That's right! It had history, we need it, and we expect to need it in the future.

When communities do not stop to identify and treasure their sacred places, it's as if we had allowed the workmen to come and remove all the boxes and bags to the junk pile. Yes, we'd get rid of a lot of the valueless objects, but the sacred places would be gone, too. I keep picturing the farmland that was once where the Dutch Wonderland parking lot is now. When I was small, I remember that the barn was torn down and the land prepared for development, but the house was put on rollers, and moved up to the hill behind what was Joe Myers' Restaurant. To this day, I look at that house as I drive by, and it reminds me of the farm that once covered the opposite side of Route 30. That house, for me, is a sacred place.

Change must come; it brings with it many wonderful things. In my home, it means central air conditioning and heating-for a community, it means homes, jobs, and places of commerce. But how much better that change seems with the sacred places still intact!

It's harder work to go through the boxes, or identify the keepers, than it is to let all the old things go. Still, the result is much more satisfying if we can discipline ourselves to do the work, sort through the mess, and save the things worth saving. When facing the changes, in our homes and communities, it all comes down to one question: "What do we keep?"

It Isn't Just Child's Play

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) – How many times have you heard someone refer to children's activities as "that's just child's play?" Remarks like that seem to minimize the importance of what children do. Play is important for children because when they play they are growing and learning. They learn how things work and gain new ideas. New words and problem solving skills are acquired. Children learn how to get along with others through play. They can use their imaginations when pretending during dramatic play times.

A good child care program will provide opportunities for different kinds of play. Children need time for vigorous play, alternating with time for quiet activities. They need to play in small and large groups, with the option to play alone at times. Free play with choices that challenge various skills help children learn. Children should be free to choose how to play with something, as long as it is safe. Enough time to complete activities and hold attention is important, but not too much to prevent boredom. A two to five minute warning before play must end is helpful for children so they can complete what they are doing.

A variety of toys and materials should be available and accessible to the children in an environment that is safe. Play needs to be scheduled when the children are not tired, hungry, or hurried. Parents, make sure that your child has the right kinds of activities in the child care program you have selected.

The Penn State University Cooperative Extension's Better Kid Care Project has free educational materials for child care providers in Pennsylvania. For information or to order materials call 1-800-452-9108.

'I Remember'. . . Green Dragon Tales

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — "Green Dragon Day" brings the same excitment to 75-year-old David H. Burkholder now as it did growing up as the son of the founder of the Farmers Market and Auction.

Burkholder captures the history and memories in his recently released book "Green Dragon Farmers Market and Auction." The autobiography tells not only of the market but also of his life and faith as a conservative Mennonite. Author Marie E. Cutman helped him write the 112-page soft cover book published by her business MecPublishing in Morgantown.

Green Dragon Market and Auction draws thousands of people every Friday to its sprawling complex one mile north of Ephrata. The market has a loyal clientel made up of both local and out-of-state patrons.

"I tried to write everything as truthful as I could," Burkholder said of the aura that surrounds the famous dragon perched atop a large sign along Route 272.

At first his dad, a farmer, tried to detach the farmer's market from the Green Dragon name because of it's former affiliation as a roadhouse, the name persisted because it seemed the easiest way to identify the location.

The book chronicles the story of a struggling farmer who finds success in the market and auction business during The Great Depression. Noah Burkholder set aside a part of his 80-acre farm for the farmers market in 1932. About 35 people attended the first day.

Today visitors often have difficulty finding a space during prime market hours even though the 75-acre parking lot can accomodate 1,700 cars.

Times were tough during the Depression. Although his father owned three farms, Burkholder tells of the breadman's refusal to leave any more bread at the door until the bill was paid. He also notes his father not having the money to pay the bill after scrimping together enough to pay the taxes.

His own family took advantage of the many bargains sold at the farmers market. One purchase didn't turn out to be such a bargain when it brought bed bugs to the Burkholder home with its seven children.

Burkholder's account include a bit of history of the area with the memory of a trolley wreck, local fires, and storms.

While the majority of standholders and clerks were honest, a few swindlers tried to weasel money from unexpecting customers and from the owner himself. And those who tried to sneak in alcoholic drinks were barred from the grounds forever.

Many of the standholders are mentioned by name and ancedotes related to some such as the "fishman" and "ice man."

Wherever there's money—crime appears. Thieves tried to rob his dad when he left the market. When they hit his head with a blackjack, his wide-brimmed hat shielded him somewhat and protected him from serious injury. Although the robbers took the car, the market receipts had been safely deposited earlier.

Burkholder's father went on to become a minister. Burkholder himself lived a "wild" life, which he recounts. Eventually, he repented and became a personal evangelist. Stories of his evangelising are included in the book as well as his business endeavors in starting another business, the East End Mart, a hardware, wallpaper, and paint store in Ephrata.

While the book doesn't always clearly follow a chronological order, it does offer a glimpse into farm markets and auctions, where people became like family to each other.

David Burkholder will be autographing his book at the East End Mark on Sat. Dec. 20, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The book is also available for purchase at several stands at Green Dragon and by mailorder. The book costs $9.99 plus $3 for shipping and handling. Send orders to Burkholder at 803 Burkey Lane, Ephrata, PA 17522.

David Burkholder autographs the book he has written about the Green Dragon Farmers Market and Auction.

Shopping for presents. . . sending cards. . . cleaning the house—the demands of the holiday season are stressful enough. Trying to squeeze in cooking for a dinner party often can seem as unsurmountable as climbing Mt. Everest.

Yet with thoughtful menu selection and creative advance preparation, not only can you throw and enjoy a successful holiday party, you may even be able to take a nap in the day of the event.

Here are some helpful hints to make the dinner hassle-free.

• When choosing a menu it's important to try the meal in advance. Not only will it safeguard against failure, but even an experienced cook can make the dish more quickly the second time around.

• Select dishes that can be made prior to the big day and refrigerated. Reheat before guests arrive.

• There are a number of things that can be prepared in advance. It's easy to roast vegetables, prepare sauces, and even chop onions for the entire menu ahead of time. The day of the dinner add something simple such as shrimp, which takes minutes to cook, to already prepared sauces.

• Make lists! In addition to traditional shopping lists, create detailed preparation lists. Review recipes and make note of what can be made two days in advance, one day in advance, and the morning of the event.

Here's some holiday party recipes from our readers to help you enjoy your own party.

SWEET POTATO CHIPS

3 or 4 raw sweet potatoes, peeled and thinly sliced.

Oil, 5-inches deep in deep pan.

Heat oil to 365 degrees. Fry slices of sweet potato in single layer until nicely browned 8 to 10 minutes. Remove with slotted spoon onto absorbent paper to drain. Salt to taste. Cool. Stores up to a week in tight container.

MEAT PINWHEELS

8-ounce package cream cheese, softened
1 tablespoon grated onion
1 teaspoon horseradish
Dash Worcestershire sauce
4-ounces sliced beef or ham

Blend cream cheese, onion, horseradish, and Worcestershire sauce until of spreading consistency. Carefully separate slices of beef or ham and lay out each slice, slightly overlapping, about five across on a clean dish towel. Do this for about three rows, all slightly overlapping until a rectangle is formed. Spread with cheese mixture. Roll as for a jelly roll, using the dish towel to help bring up all the meat at the beginning of the roll. Press along with your fingers this inner roll and proceed to roll until completed. Chill. When cold, use your fingers to form a better circle. Just before serving, slice into inch slices.

MOLASSES STACK CAKE

Cake layers:
1 cup granulated sugar
1 cup melted butter
1 cup molasses
3 eggs, beaten
4 cups plain flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon ginger
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon cloves
1 cup sweet milk
1 tablespoon vanilla flavoring

Cream butter and sugar until fluffy. Add molasses and beaten eggs one at a time, mixing well. Combine dry ingredients and add to batter alternately with milk. Stir in vanilla. Grease and flour pans. Pour a half cup batter into pans and spread with spatula. Bake in preheated oven to 375 degree oven for 15-20 minutes or until cake pulls away from sides of pan.

This cake makes approximately 10 layers. You can put more than ½ cup in cake pan if you wish.

For filling between layers:
2 quarts dried apples or cooked apples or apple butter
Sugar and cinnamon to taste

Soak the dried apples overnight in water to cover. Drain and cook with sugar and cinnamon to taste, depending on the sweetness of apples used. Blend in a food processor or blender until smooth. Layer with cooled cake layers and store in refrigerator until ready to use.

ESPRESSO BROWNIE ALMOND CAKE

Cake:

½ cup butter, cut into small pieces
3 tablespoons unsweetened cocoa powder
3 eggs
½ cup granulated sugar
½ cup brown sugar
¼ teaspoon almond extract
1 tablespoon instant coffee (preferably espresso) granules, dissolved in ¼ cup hot water
¾ cup all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup ground toasted almonds

Glaze:

5 ounces semisweet chocolate, coarsely chopped
¼ cup whipping cream
2 tablespoons butter
1½ teaspoons instant coffee (preferably espresso) granules, dissolved in 1½ teaspoon hot water. Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Lightly butter 9-inch round cake pan; coat with cocoa powder. National 4-H Ad Campaign

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Smokey Bear says, "Only you can prevent forest fires." McGruff the Dog urges us to "take a bite out of crime." And if you don't wear your seatbelt, "you could learn a lot from a dummy" (a crash-test dummy, that is).

These are examples of successful public service advertising campaigns by the Advertising Council Now, 4-H and the Ad Council have joined forces to ask, "Are you into it?"

That's the theme of a new national media campaign-called 4-H Youth Voices and Action–designed to promote volunteerism and community service among the nation's youth and to raise awareness of the diverse educational opportunities offered by 4-H Public service ads began running on radio and television stations and in newspapers and other publications this fall.

"The ads are meant to encourage kids and adults to get involved in their communities," said Patti Fantaske, who coordinates the 4-H Youth Voices and Action campaign in Pennsylvania for Penn State Cooperative Extension.

"At the recent President's Summit on America's Future, 4-H made a commitment to involve an additional 300,000 youth in community service by the turn of the century," Fantaske said, "We hope this campaign will help us reach that goal. At the same time, the program will help broaden the image of 4-H so people realize it's much more than just cows and cooking."

More than 119,000 urban and rural Pennsylvania youth between the ages of eight and 19 participate in 4-H programs, in subject areas such as the environment, clothing and textiles, entrepreneurship, photography, rocketry, horsemanship, entomology, plant science, nutrition and global citizenship. Most 4-H clubs and projects include a community service component. Nationwide, 4-H involves 5.4 million youth and more than 500,000 adult volunteers

The ads, created by advertising agency Bates USA, demonstrate that voluntering is a fun and worthwhile activity, and encourage youth and adults interested in community service to call a toll-free telephone number (888-77-YOUTH) or visit the campaign's World Wide Web site (www.areyouintoit.com). Callers will be contacted by a youth 4-H member or adult 4-H leader in their home county, who will provide information on community service volunteer opportunities, as well as on local 4-H clubs and activities.

The Ad Council, the nation's largest producer of public service advertising, receives more than 400 requests annually from nonprofit organizations and government agencies to develop public service ad campaigns. 4-H was one of only four client programs chosen to launch in 1997. The "Are You Into It?" campaign dovetails with the Ad Council's "Commitment 2000" project, a 10-year initiative focusing a majority of the council's efforts on children's issues.

The Right Stuff

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) – This is the time of year when people spend millions of dollars on toys for children. There are thousands of ads touting products as being "good for this and sensational or that." Parents want their children to have the best opportunities for learning. This is a good time to consider what is best for your child when it comes to playthings.

Children need toys that are safe and appropriate for their age to learn new skills. It is important for them to have the right kinds of toys for play at home and at child care. Look around your home and your child's child care program to see what kind of toys and equipment are there.

Good toys do not need to be expensive. Things found around the house are often favorites. These include old magazines or catalogs, plastic cups, wooden spoons, yarn, water, and cardboard boxes. Blocks, books, climbing equipment, and riding toys cost more, but usually are enjoyed by all children and last for years.

Books are important because children need to be read to every day. Story and musical tapes provide hours of enjoyment. Art materials such as paints, crayons, chalk, all types and sizes of paper, brushes, safety scissors, and glue are important for creative activities. Puzzles, games such as Candyland, Scrabble Jr., Monopoly, and Memory teach problem solving skills. Children enjoy playdough, dolls, stuffed animals, and puppets. Musical instruments that are fun include drums, xylophones, shakers, and toy pianos. Dress-up clothes and props such as purses, hats, jewelry, neckties, and a small suitcase help with pretend games. Toy vehicles, animal and play people figures are fun for children.

Tell your child care provider about the free educational materials, including newsletters and videos that are available from Penn State Cooperative Extension's Better Kid Care Project by calling toll-free 1-800-452-9108.

Garnishes add interest, few calories

I really like adding pimentos and water chestnuts to stir-fries and vegetable dishes. Do they add many calories?

Both pimentos and water chestnuts are great garnishes, and neither add many calories at all.

Pimentos are really just roasted sweet red peppers with the skin removed. They're usually chopped or sliced, packed in oil or water, and sold in small jars in the canned vegetable section in the grocery store. You also can buy the bright red garnish whole, and slice or chop the pimento yourself.

A tablespoon of pimentos contains less than three calories and less than a tenth of a gram of fat. It also contains 19 milligrams of potassium and 10 milligrams of vitamin C.

Water chestnuts are those round, crisp, white canned vegetables usually sold in the Oriental foods section of the grocery store. A half-cup of sliced water chestnuts also contains less than one-tenth of a gram of fat, 83 grams of potassium, and only 35 calories.

Water chestnuts are a root crop — the chestnut grow as corms on the root. You can eat them raw after removing the brown husk. Raw, their texture is more like a crisp apple or a macadamia nut. Some specialty food stores carry raw water chestnuts, which have about 60 calories per half-cup. (Avoid any that are soft or sprouting.)

Nutritionists say the best thing about garnishes like pimentos and water chestnuts is that they add interest to otherwise boring but good-for-you dishes. Adding either or both to a bowl of green beans, broccoli, carrots or cauliflower makes the vegetable dish more appetizing and visually appealing.

Those added incentives make help you reach for vegetables more often — and that's a good goal. Recent surveys show that most Americans manage to get three servings of vegetables per day only because of heavy reliance on white potatoes. A wide variety of vegetables — including dark-leafy green vegetables and deep yellow or orange vegetables — is important in any diet. If water chestnuts, pimentos or some other low-fat, low-calorie garnish entices you to eat more vegetables, then go for it.

Holstein Dog? Case Of Mistaken Identity

Cat or Collie? Spider adapts to playing with either and both accept the naughty puppy as a rambunctious playmate.

Spider's coat blends right in with the Holstein calves as he snuggles up for a snooze.

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

EAST EARL (Lancaster Co.) — Spider has a coat like a Holstein cow, a face like a Fox Terrier, antics of a cat, and the personality of a naughty puppy.

What is Spider? He is really a mixture between a Fox Terrier and a pointy ear Chihuahua.

No doubt because his black and white spots look exactly like the coats of the Holstein cows in the barn, Spider has been adopted by the cows. He snuggles up to the calves for his daytime and nightly snoozes. From a distance, his coat blends in so well that it's difficult to believe that one of the animals is a dog—until Spider raises his head.

His brown head doesn't seem to belong to his black and white body. Spider wiggles out of the calf pen in a second and prances around like a circus dog.

Watch out! As soon as one of the 11 cats on John and Cheryl Zimmerman's farm saunters by, Spider thinks he is a cat. He wraps his front paws around the cat and playfully wrestles it to the ground. The cats seem to like the agile Spider and roll around with the dog just as if he were another kitten. Spider is the same size of the cats, and it isn't certain if the cats think Spider is a cat or a dog. What is known is that sometimes the cats become irritated by Spider's incessant playfulness. But rather than scratch Spider, the cats run off and hide from him.

When the 11 cats begin to eat, Spider zooms in and lands right in the middle of the foray to scarf down the cat food.

When the Zimmerman's faithful collie dog named Lassie nuzzles Spider, he wags his tail happily and attempts to give him a puppy smooch.

No doubt, Spider is a dog with a mistaken identity. He isn't quite sure what he is—dog, cat, or calf. But it doesn't really matter because Spider acts like he's enjoying every moment of life on the Zimmerman farm located in East Earl.

Help Children Select Appropriate Gifts

Kids, like adults, like to give gifts during the holidays to family and friends However, they may have difficulty finding the finances to purchase their presents

If your children are concerned about their holiday budgets, discuss with them that holiday gifts do not need to be gifts purchased with money. The point of holiday gifts is to express affection and appreciation A gift of time and effort often means much more to the receiver than one purchased with cash

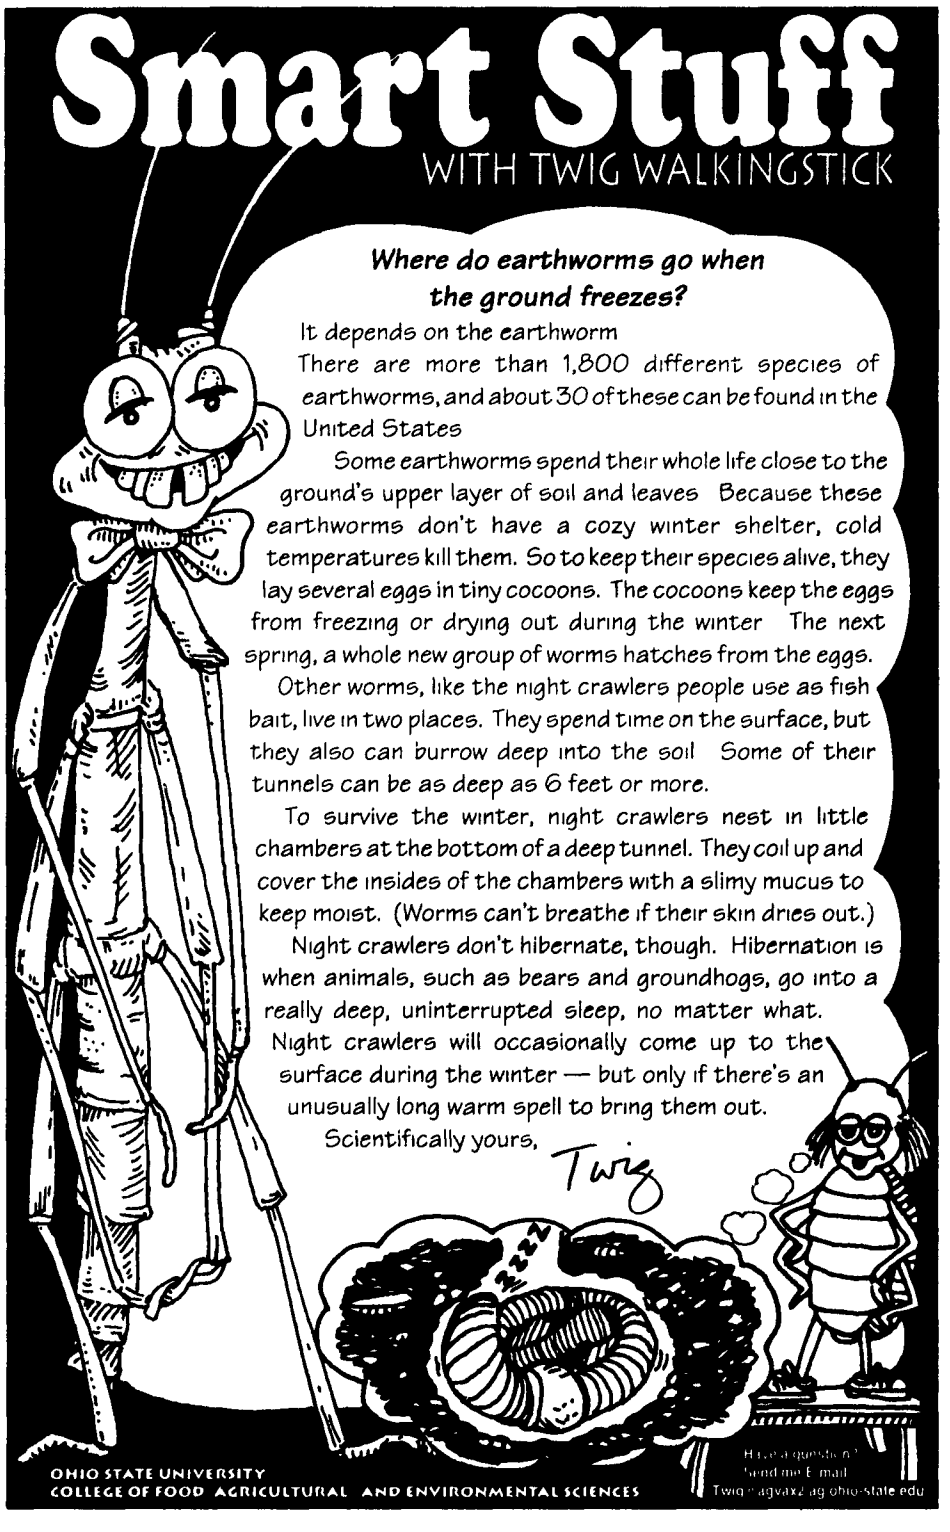
Below are a few ideas your children can give as gifts to special people in their lives. The gifts will be greatly appreciated by the receiver and easier on your child's pocketbook.

•If your children have the gift of gab, help them write it down in a booklet or on a scroll A story or poem with hand drawn illustrations or photographs will make a gift to keep forever.

•Making something out of clay or paper mache' can be surprisingly inexpensive and fun for children of all ages Homemade boxes, plates, Christmas ornaments, and other decorations will last long after little trinkets bought at the store.

•One of the loveliest gifts a parent or a relative who lives nearby can get, is a series of job cards or coupons – "Good for one dishwashing," "Good for two hours of babysitting," "Good for a car wash" – are some obvious ones. Each card can be decorated or packaged in an attractive folder or box.

While you are list making, write down all the people who are to receive gifts. Then put down the amount of money and time your children have available to buy and make presents. then help them set up a realistic mix to stretch both time and money to fit the list.



Smart Stuff
WITH TWIG WALKINGSTICK
Where do earthworms go when the ground freezes?
It depends on the earthworm
There are more than 1,800 different species of earthworms, and about 30 of these can be found in the United States
Some earthworms spend their whole life close to the ground's upper layer of soil and leaves Because these earthworms don't have a cozy winter shelter, cold temperatures kill them. So to keep their species alive, they lay several eggs in tiny cocoons. The cocoons keep the eggs from freezing or drying out during the winter The next spring, a whole new group of worms hatches from the eggs.
Other worms, like the night crawlers people use as fish bait, live in two places. They spend time on the surface, but they also can burrow deep into the soil Some of their tunnels can be as deep as 6 feet or more.
To survive the winter, night crawlers nest in little chambers at the bottom of a deep tunnel. They coil up and cover the insides of the chambers with a slimy mucus to keep moist. (Worms can't breathe if their skin dries out.)
Night crawlers don't hibernate, though. Hibernation is when animals, such as bears and groundhogs, go into a really deep, uninterrupted sleep, no matter what.
Night crawlers will occasionally come up to the surface during the winter — but only if there's an unusually long warm spell to bring them out.
Scientifically yours,
Twig

HOLIDAY PLANTS MAKE GREAT GIFTS

While the poinsettia is the traditional plant of the Christmas season, other beautiful flowering plants are available. Buy a holiday plant to add to your collection or use it as a gift. Here's a few ideas.

• New Christmas cacti varieties, schlumbergera species, with shades of red, pink, purple, white, orange and even yellow flowers make a great gift. Look for larger flowers, prolonged flowering and more compact types this season. The Christmas cactus is easy to grow and very long lived.

• Holiday cacti prefer bright, indirect light, temperatures of 60 to 70° F and an evenly moist soil during flowering. Exposure to cold temperatures (carefully wrap plants when transporting them outdoors in winter), moving plants from one location to another, drafts and excessive watering can cause the buds to drop from the plants before blooming.

After the plant stops blooming, keep it in a cool, sunny window. In summer, put it outside in light shade and leave it there as long as possible into the Fall. Take stem cuttings in the summer using a terminal 'leaf' pad or stem tip. Cuttings root easily for many varieties.

A basket of African violets make a charming holiday gift. Hundreds of varieties are available, in colors ranging from purple, lavender, orchid, blue, cerise, pink, wine-red, white, two-tone, splotched, and white-edged.

Make sure the basket is lined so that pots can rest on pebbles. On a smaller scale, miniature violets, about six inches across, are a good choice for friends with limited space. Unlike the standard or large varieties, miniatures and micro-miniatures that are less than 3 inches fit into a wine glass. Include personalized directions with your gift.

African violets like average warm, bright light, (east or south window in winter) or artificial light using 2-40 watt fluorescent tubes about 12 inches from plants. Provide 14 hours of light each day.

Buying a poinsettia for a gift? Whether your preference is red, white, pink, peach, yellow, marbled or speckled, look for plants with fully mature, thoroughly colored and expanded bracts. Avoid plants tinged with too much green around the bract edges, which would indicate that plants are not at peak bloom.

Check to make sure that the secondary smaller bracts which surround the cyathia (the true flower, in yellow berry-like structure) are fully colored. Look for plants with lush green foliage that are undamaged and unmarred, dense and plentiful, all the way down to the soil level.

Also, look for plants that are balanced, full and attractive from all angles. The height of the plant from the rim of the pot to the top of the plant should be 1-1/2 to 2 times the height of the pot. Lastly, look for plants with strong, stiff stems; good leaf and bract retention, with no signs of wilting, breaking or dropping. These are all signs of a durable plant that gives the longest possible period of enjoyment in your home.

ANSWER — Mary Horner, Millville, N.J., wanted the recipe for a confectionary fruit cake like those sold through Harry & David mail order. Here is a recipe from Penn State Dairy Princess Liz Haas.

Fruitcake Hater's Fruitcake

3 large navel oranges
1 cup dried cranberries
¾ cup golden raisins
½ cup currants
½ cup chopped dried apricots
2 cups granulated sugar
1 cup butter, at room temperature
4 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 cups all-purpose vanilla
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
¼ teaspoon ground ginger
¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg
1 cup buttermilk
1 cup chopped walnuts

Icing:

8-ounces cream cheese, room temperature
6 tablespoons confectioners' sugar
Dried fruit (for garnish, optional)

Preheat oven to 325 degrees. Butter and flour 10-inch tube pan. Grate the peel from oranges to make 3 tablespoons for cake and 2 teaspoons for icing. Squeeze oranges to yield ⅔ cup juice for cake and ¼ cup for icing. In medium saucepan, combine dried fruits and ⅔ cup orange juice. Bring to a boil; reduce heat and simmer 5 minutes or until fruit is plumped. Drain well; set aside. In large mixer bowl, cream sugar, and butter until light and fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time; beat well. Add 3 tablespoons grated orange peel and vanilla; beat well. Alternately add combined dry ingredients and buttermilk to creamed mixture, beginning and ending with dry ingredients.

Stir in walnuts and reserved fruit. Pour batter into prepared pan. Bake about 1 hour and 15 minutes or until golden brown and wooden pick inserted in center comes out clean. Cool in pan 10 minutes. Remove to wire rack; cool completely.

For icing, beat together cream cheese and confectioners' sugar until smooth. Add ¼ cup orange juice and 2 teaspoons orange peel; beat well. Spread icing on top of cake. Garnish with dried fruit, if desired. Yield: 12-16 servings.

Note: Cake can be made 5 days in advance; cover and refrigerate. Bring to room temperature 30 minutes before serving. To freeze, wrap tightly; freeze at 0 degrees up to two months. Defrost in refrigerator.

ANSWER — Marlene Sauder, Bowmansville, would like the recipe for dry brownie mix in a jar with instructions for making brownies called Friendship Brownie Mix. Thanks to Mary Louise Grove, Hanover, for sending a recipe that she said has been in the family for years.

Brownie Mix

Dry Mix:
6 cups flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
4 teaspoons salt
8 cups sugar
8 ounces cocoa
2 cups shortening

Mix together thoroughly and store in an airtight container. When ready to make brownies, mix together:
4 cups mix
4 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup chopped nuts, optional

Put in greased 13x9-inch pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 20-25 minutes.

Also, thanks to Annette Martin, New Holland, for the following recipe.

Chocolate Friendship Brownie

Layer in jar:
1 cup plus 2 tablespoons flour
⅔ teaspoon salt
⅔ cups brown sugar
⅔ cup granulated sugar
⅓ cup cocoa
½ cup chocolate chips

When ready to use, add:
3 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
⅔ cup oil

Mix well. Pour into greased 9x9-inch pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 27-32 minutes or until done.

ANSWER — In response to Susan Harris' request for peach butter, Phyllis Green, Gettysburg, sent in this recipe.

Old Fashioned Fruit Butters

Peaches: Scald and remove peach skin, if desired. Pit, crush fruit, and cook in its own juice until soft, stirring constantly.

Sugar: Use white or brown sugar, half as much sugar as pulp or as desired.

Salt: ¼ to ½ teaspoon for every gallon butter.

Spices: As desired. Recommends 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon and ½ teaspoon ground ginger and ½ teaspoon ground allspice to 1 gallon of butter. Or tie whole spices loosely in clean, thin, white cloth. May also add 3 tablespoons lemon juice to 1 gallon fruit pulp.

Directions: Measure pulp and sugar into a large kettle. Add salt. Boil rapidly, stirring constantly to prevent scorching. As the butter becomes thick, lower heat to reduce spattering.

Add spices and lemon juice.

Continue cooking until butter is thick enough to spread.

Pour into hot jars. Adjust lids at once and process in boiling water bath 5-10 minutes. Remove from canner and complete seals.

Myths Persist

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Some reports about poisonous holiday plants are as mythical as tales of Santa, says a Penn State horticulturist.

"Certain holiday plants believed to be fatal if eaten are relatively harmless in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences. "Of Course, children and pets can't make the distinction between what's dangerous and what isn't. It's best to keep all plants out of their reach."

Many people persist in believing that the most popular Christmas plant, the poinsettia, is extremely poisonous.

"People who are allergic to the plant's milky sap can develop a rash if it gets on their hands," says Nuss. "But the poinsettia isn't fatal if eaten. If children or pets eat any part of the plant, at worst they might experience some stomach discomfort."

About 20 years ago, two Ohio State researchers fed large quantities of poinsettia parts to rats, with no ill effects. In 1975, the U.S. Consumer Prodcuct Safety Commission exonerated the poinsettia of the false charge that it's lethal if ingested.

The commission also refuted allegations that the berries of American mistletoe are fatal if eaten. "But that doesn't mean mistletoe berries are edible," says Nuss. "Mistletoe should be hung out of the reach of children and pets, and berries that drop should be removed from the floor immediately.

About 400 plant species in the United States are known to be poisonous, according to the book, "Poisonous Plants of the United States," by Walter Conrad Muenscher.

Among them are holly, ivy, Jerusalem cherry, laurel, rhododendron and yew — all commonly used in holiday decorations.

If a child or pet accidentally ingests these plants, consult a physician or veterinarian immediately. Do not induce vomiting without the advice of a doctor. If a plant containing corrosive juices has been eaten, vomiting can damage the digestive tract.

The Poison Information Center for central Pennsylvania can be reached by calling 1-800-521-6110.

Green Gift Makes Leaves Disappear Like Magic

COLLEGEVILLE, (Montgomery Co.) – The crumbling leaves of autumn are now blanketing lawns and piling up against fences throughout the region. The Recycling Education Program of the Montgomery County Cooperative Extension, Penn State, has a gift suggestion for transforming those leaves into compost that will benefit gardens and house plants all year round. For those willing to test their knowledge of the composting process, a $25 coupon will help keep the cost of your gift giving to a minimum.

The process is simple. Request a BIN composting quiz from the Recycling Education Program. Along with the quiz you will receive a packet of information on the topics of home composting, using yard wastes as mulch, and grass cycling. Read through the information, complete the quiz, and return it to the Recycling Education Program.

Those who successfully complete the BIN quiz will be mailed a $25 BIN coupon redeemable at 11 area retailers and three mail order companies. The BIN coupon can be used to purchase building materials (from a specified materials list) to build a bin, or put towards the purchase price of a pre-built bin.

You can request a quiz for yourself and use the $25 towards the gift of a compost bin for your family. Request a quiz for a friend, neighbor, or relative living in Montgomery County. They can return the quiz and get the $25 coupon for their own use.

Compost bins that can be purchased with the coupon come in all shapes, sizes and price ranges. Buy a trash can and drill holes in the sides. Use chicken wire or hardware cloth with support stakes. Lightweight and portable, these bins can be placed in a garden area or a convenient spot in your yard. Do one last round of leaf raking or ming to clean up the yard and in the process fill up the bin with the leaves. Over the winter the leaves will start to decompose and the pile will shrink to about 1/3 its original size. Remove the wire or empty the can in the spring and the decomposed material can be spread as mulch, or if fully decayed, worked right into the garden soil. Wire bins can be rolled up and stored again until next fall.

The $25 coupon can also be used towards the purchase of a more expensive pre-built bin. There are a wide variety available. These are often made using recycled plastic and have tight fitting lids. Several mail order companies are offering reduced prices through the BIN program, making a pre-built bin an affordable choice.

To receive the composting quiz and be eligible for the $25 coupon during this gift giving season, or to find out more about our 1998 schedule of free composting workshops, call the Recycling Education Program at (610) 489-4315, 8:30 a.m. - 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. The Recycling Education Program is a part of the Montgomery County Cooperative Extension.

Give Kids Lasting Gifts

When deciding what to buy your children for the holidays, keep in mind the gifts that will last a lifetime. Instead of buying the latest toys or clothes, consider some of these lasting gifts suggested by Dr. Glen Jensen, professor in the Department of Family and Human Development at Utah State University.

•The gift of a parent's attention. Few of life's many pleasures are greater than knowing that someone is giving you full attention. It is even better if the attention giving happens on regular occasions.

•The gift of a talent to share. A child with a talent to share has a greater chance of being accepted into wholesome friendship groups. Self-esteem is enhanced and opportunity knocks much more frequently among those with talents to share. The talent might come from extra effort and opportunity provided for private lessons in music athletics or some other special interest that the child may express.

•The gift of a sense of humor. Everyone, regardless of age, can benefit from a good belly laugh at least one each day. Humor makes the down parts of life that we all experience more palatable Humor can help heal many of life's real or imagined illnesses

•The gift of being loved We all survive better if we know and are told and shown on a regular basis that we are loved Knowledge that we are loved is recognized by the recipient when kind words are spoken and acts of service are rendered without being assigned

•The gift of your time Most of us, regardless of our age, cherish the time we spend with significant adults

My husband is home again from a deer hunting trip. He didn't get a deer but at least he is safe and sound. I always seem to worry when he goes far away — maybe it is my way of trying to keep bad things from happening as then the unexpected is expected.

My sister and I have both been hunting diaries this year. The kind that we previously used are no longer available. There are some available but they are quite expensive. Finally we did find some near Ephrata.

You see, I have been writing every single day since january 1, 1937. And, I wish that I had started sooner. Sometimes in reading them, I read something that I had completely forgotten.

Recently, my husband, son, and I attended a tailgate party at the Ag Arena in State College. We had to park in a rather muddy field and walk to the nearby arena. When we sat down to eat, we were surprised to find a couple sitting opposite us that we had not seen for years. It was a former fellow employee of the Farm Bureau in Lancaster. Such encounters always add to a day's enjoyment. Our son is a graduate of both Penn State and the University of Wisconsin and so he said he would root for whoever was losing.

We've been privileged to attend two grandchildren's birthday parties within a week's time. Now one boy is seven and his brother is four. They seem to be growing up so fast. Summer is the time when we enjoy their company the most as they help us in our garden. If we pick beans, they pick beans, and if we dig potatoes, then they must also dig potatoes. Of course, we enjoy hearing their thoughts and we hope they will remember working with their grandparents.

Lancaster Society 8

LANCASTER – Farm Women No 8 met on December 3 at the home of Sylvia Kuch in Elizabethtown. Gloria Straub gave devotions and the hostesses were Alice Walter, Mary Ann Spangler, Vernetta Wallender and Sylvia Kuch.

Chris Palmer gave a talk on the history and origin of Christmas ornaments and showed many antique items.

There is no meeting in January. The next meeting will be February 11 at the Community Room at the Country Homes in Mount Joy. Members are to bring a 1-pound item wrapped for the auction.

Gifts and Givers— From A Senior Point Of View

LEBANON, Pa. (Lebanon Co.) – We're often in a quandary about a gift for someone whom we want to remember. Sometimes we hear, "Don't spend any money on me." Other times the statement is "I really don't need anything".

However, the gift is usually meant to say "I care; I'm thinking about you."

The following is a partial list of possible gifts. You may have even better ideas. Remember to keep the receiver in mind. You wouldn't want to give a box of candy to someone who can't eat sweets, or a small print book to a friend with eye problems. Here we go!

- Coffee mugs with sayings
- Note paper and/or stamps
- Books with large print
- Specialty books (glass collecting, needlepoint, crossword puzzle, pets, fish and game, bird watching)
- Personal gift certificates (pet sitting, visits, yard work, floor waxing, car washing, hairdo's, manicures, etc.)
- Sheet music, records, cassettes; a tape recorder/player; earphone or headset
- Under-bed storage unit
- Plants, gardening equipment or a gift certificate from the florist (recipient decides when to redeem)
- Placemats
- Magazine or newspaper subscription
- Pill cutter
- Pill box
- Night lamp or bedside or chairside "gooseneck" to put light where needed
- Indoor-outdoor thermometer
- Grocery store gift certificates
- Bird feeder, seed, identification guide book
- Gourmet coffee, tea
- Games
- Bible in cassettes (many versions available: King James, Living Bible, with sound effects, etc.)
- AT&T gift certificate or other telephone company
- Telephone for hearing impaired
- Sachet
- Covered coat hangars
- Personal TV set with remote control
- Calendars
- Personal photo albums
- Mobiles
- Small afghan
- Knitted slippers
- Home made baked articles - specially packed
- Ingredients for one meal or a casserole dish...eat it with them
- Paper products
- Gift boxes of meat for the freezer
- Gift certificates for car care or gasoline
- Dried fruits or canned fruits packed in juice or water
- Gift certificate to Travel Agency
- Special diet foods
- Clothes for special handicaps
- Wheelchair related items (e.g. saddlebags)
- Carrier bag to attach to a walker
- Concert tickets and a ride to get there
- Craft supplies e.g. knitting yard; also teach a new pattern or skill
- Stuffed toy (bear) or soft doll for those who have mental impairments and do not respond to usual stimuli
- Magnifying glass or large thin sheet magnifier, the size of a whole page.

Remember: If someone remembers you with a gift, they care. The best responses "thank you", not "you shouldn't have." Love is giving and receiving.

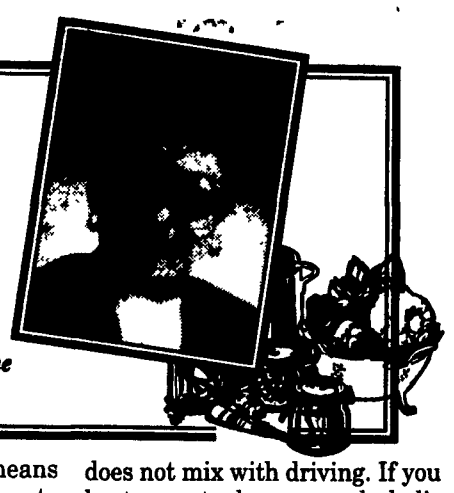
Consuming Thoughts

by

Fay Strickler

Penn State Extension Home Economist For Berks Co.



The holiday season means parties that are a great way to relax and have fun. Make sure the holiday parties you host or attend are safe ones.

Fires are often started by careless smoking, so make sure you have plenty of large, deep ashtrays for your guests. Empty them often and in a safe place.

If possible, prepare food ahead of time so you can serve food with little or no help. Make the kitchen off limits for children. Crowding and confusion make the kitchen an all to likely place for accidents to occur.

Another major concern at holiday parties is drinking, which does not mix with driving. If you host a party, have non-alcoholic beverages such as chilled fruit juices or soda readily available and put your guests at ease about selecting them. Don't force alcoholic drinks on anyone. Have food available so guests can snack throughout the party.

When you pour drinks don't overdo it. Keep the alcohol content reasonable. Stop serving drinks about an hour before the time you figure guests will start to leave. The body needs about an hour to rid itself of the alcohol in one drink. If you're driving, limit yourself to one drink per hour and stop drinking an hour before you plan to leave.

If any guests have had too much to drink, get them to stay overnight, or to ride home with someone else. You could also call a taxi for them.

Practices such as cutting off alcoholic drinks or taking a friend's keys have become much more common and accepted. Make this the year you start these practices. You may not have the chance to later.

When you're entertaining, it makes sense to use all the help that's available. Family and friends enjoy sharing the preparation and hosting.

While the host traditionally takes charge of the bar, keep in mind that a punch bowl, keyed to the party theme, adds to the fun and is the simplest way of serving drinks to a group.

Here is a party punch to serve at you party.

PARTY PUNCH

Sherbet Ring:

1 pint lemon sherbet

1 pint lime sherbet

Punch:

1 can (1 qt. 14 oz.) orange-grapefruit juice, chilled

1 can (1 qt. 14 oz.) pineapple juice, chilled

1 can (12 oz.) apricot nectar, chilled

1/4 cup sugar

1 quart ginger ale, chilled

For sherbet ring, alternate scoops of lemon and lime sherbet in a 4-1/2 cup ring mold; pack lightly. Freeze until firm. To unmold, dip mold in warm water just to the rim a few seconds. Invert onto a flat plate and slide into punch bowl.

For punch, combine orange-grapefruit juice, pineapple juice, apricot nectar and sugar in a punch bowl. Add ginger ale. Unmold sherbet ring into punch. Serve immediately.

ANSWER — Pat Anschuetz, New Oxford, answers Mrs. Aaron Kauffman's request for having a fleece cleaned. You can clean the fleece yourself by following these steps: Fill washing machine with hot water and 2 cups detergent. After the tub is full, turn off the machine and add the fleece, pushing it down gently so that is is submerged. Let sit 20 minutes. Do not Agitate!

After soaking, turn washing machine to the spin cycle and turn on. Remove fleece from washer after spinning and wipe washer with a clean dry rag.

Repeat this process three to four more times omitting the soap. The most important thing is never agitate and never change water temperature abruptly. Either one will cause the wool to felt.

Theresa Ferrel, York, sent many addresses for sending fleeces to be cleaned. Here are some of the companies that charge by the pound for cleaning and will also turn wool into batting to make quilts or roving ready for spinning and crafting: Ohio Valley Natural Fibers, 8541 Louderback Rd., Sardinia, Ohio 45171-9603. Kari Umphrey and the York County Conservation District invite Christmas Magic visitors to pause and study wildlife friendly habitat in their 'backyard for all seasons.' The display at Rocky Ridge Park's light festival is a new holiday promotin for the district's annual tree seedling sale.

Trees Promoted At Christmas Magic

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK (York Co.) – Looking for a unique holiday gift for an outdoors and nature lover?

How about a tree?

No, not a Christmas tree. Most folks have already taken care of that themselves.

Perhaps a red oak or a chinese chestnut or a poplar?

Or, if the seasonal tradition absolutely demands evergreens, a white pine or a Douglas fir or Colorado blue spruce might fit the need.

The York County Conservation District has stepped up its annual seedling sale from late winter to the holidays, just in time to provide an alternative suggestion for the gift-giving challenged. The District is promoting the seedling sale, which benefits its educational programs, with a display at the York County Parks' 14th annual "Christmas Magic - A Festival of Lights."

This season marks the first time the conservation group has participated in this widely-popular holiday event. And, while the tree seedlings will not actually be available until late April, the display gives buyers a head-start in planning ahead for the spring planting season.

Christmas Magic is a walking tour through festive lights and seasonal displays, held annually through December at York County's Rocky Ridge Park.

The setting is high atop one of York County's tallest ridges, with the half-mile walking trail meandering through the park's woodland, and designed to be accessible to all.

Brightening the trail are more than 80,000 glowing lights, plus numerous, colorful outdoor props, cheery animated scenes, a G-gauge train display, crafts, food, and Santa on hand to visit with the children. Nearly 25,000 visitors, including many from surrounding states, enjoyed last year's display, with attendance fees benefitting the York County Parks' programs.

The Conservation District's booth at Christmas Magic is not only designed to promote its tree planting programs, but to focus on education as well.

Tying into the theme of, "A Backyard For All Seasons", are displays of trees and wildlife, colorful and informative posters and some hand-on activities that will involve both kids and adults in learning more about the outdoors. An assortment of evergreens accents the display with its house-like entrance, constructed with the assistance of the York Chapter of the Isaac Walton League.

At the "wild leaf pile", visitors can attempt to match the variety of real leaves with the names of the trees on which they grew.

There are animal mounts to identify, with interesting facts about their habits. For the adventuresome, one corner of the display features the "mysterious black hole" into which visitors can poke their hands and, without looking, try to identify several objects which might be found on the forest floor.

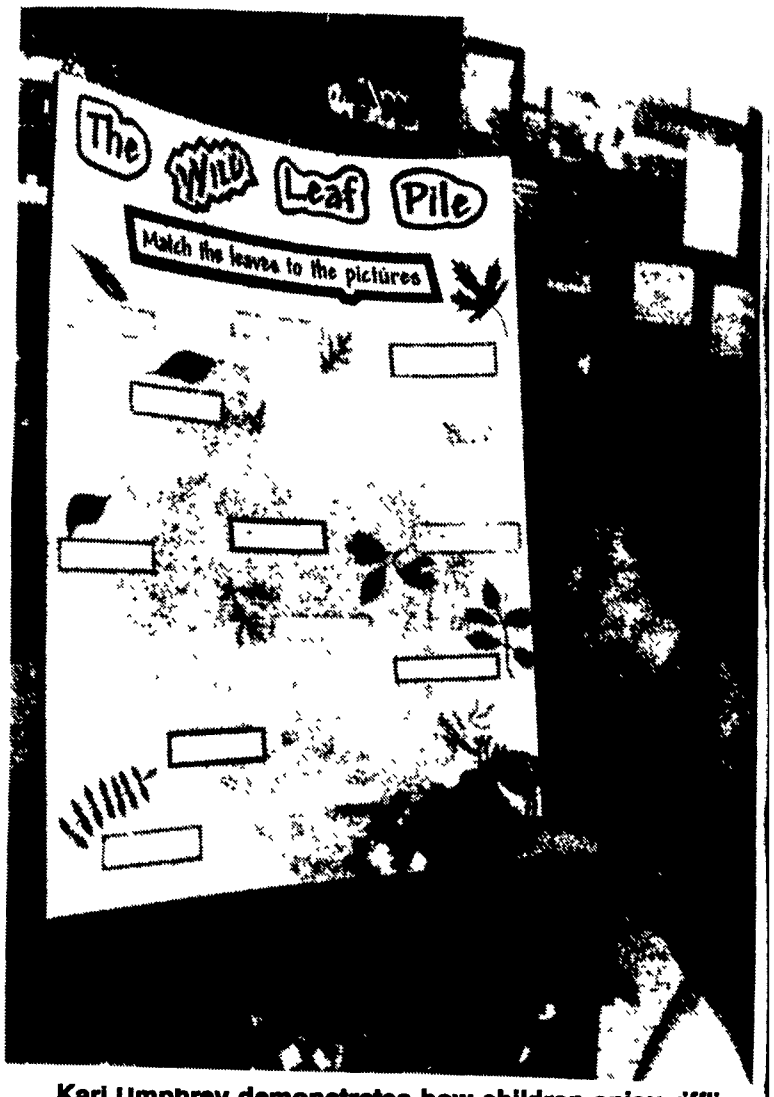
All displays feature plants and animals which are native to Pennsylvania. A cooperating display by the P.H. Glatfleter Paper firm includes a wall covered with a large mural on which kids can draw or color their ideas of things made with wood.

"We are advocates of cooperating with other agencies, so when the county parks invited us to participate, we thought it would be a good opportunity to promote our tree sale," says Kari Umphrey, education and communications coordinator for the York County Conservation District.

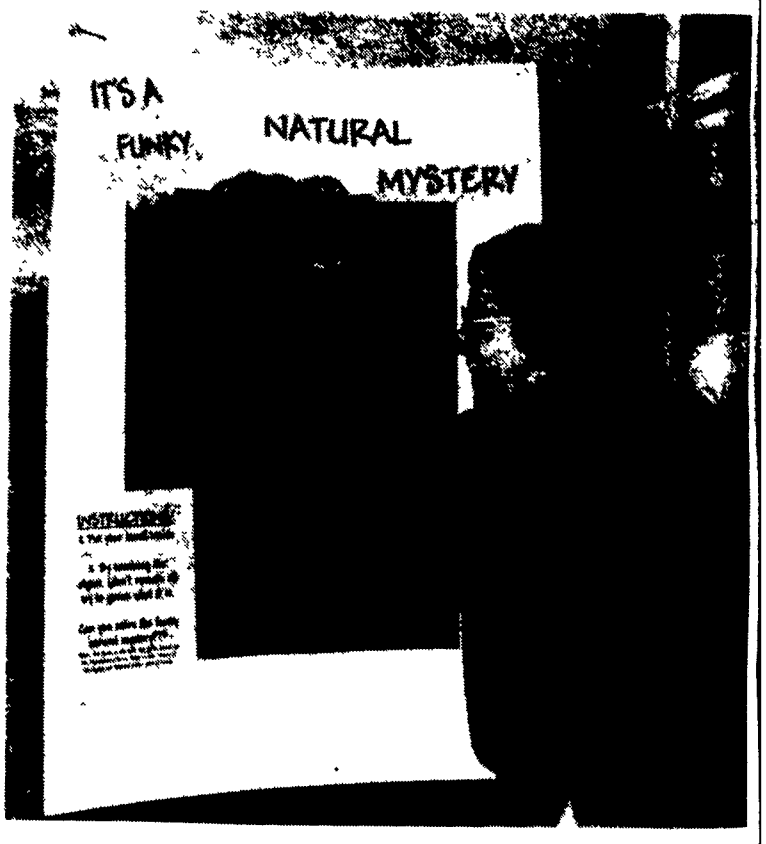
"An enormous number of people attend Christmas Magic and it is a good opportunity to get our message out," adds Kari, who has put together much of the display at the holiday event. "The seedling sale is our primary fundraiser for our educational programs, including events like the Envirothon and our Soil Tunnel."

Envirothon competitions challenge elementary and high school student teams on a broad range of environmental knowledge, while the Soil Tunnel is a large visual used for educational programs and includes a worm-costumed character

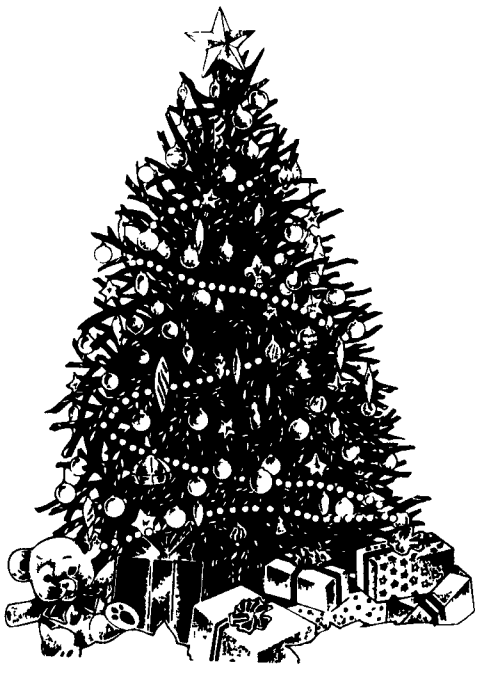
In addition to the Conservation District's school and public programs, it has a growing library of educational resources, including videos and hands-on materials available for loan to teachers and group leaders working with conservation studies.



Kari Umphrey demonstrates how children enjoy riffling through the 'wild leaf pile' to match real dried leaves to the names of native Pennsylvania trees from which the leaves grew.



Stick your hand in the display booth's mystery black hole, as demonstrated by Kari Umphrey, but don't peek. Kids and adults alike enjoy trying to guess the objects inside, which are commonly found on Pennsylvania's forest floors.



District's holiday display, according to Kari, is to interest area adults in the seedling sale and promote to the public the numerous benefits of planting trees and plants which aid in natural conservation and enhance wildlife cover.

Seedlings available for order include several types of evergreens as well as deciduous trees, wildlife-friendly mixes, wildflower seeds and tree shelters for protecting tender young trees. New offerings this year include two types of groundcover, crownvetch and pachysandra, as well as packets of five redbud seedlings.

Tree packets range from 5 to 10 seedlings, dependent on variety, and sell for $6 per packet. Pickup day for the seedling sale is Saturday, April 18 at the York County Vocation-Technical School. Order forms can be obtained at the Christmas York County Conservation District office at 717-840-7430 or 1-800-441-2025, Extension 7430. All orders must be submitted with prepayment to the district office by March 25, 1998

Getting rid of those annoying hang-ups in your operation is easier than ever.

The new SURGE® One Touch™ makes stanchion milking as easy as this. A lightweight, gun-grip design integrates the milk line and pulsation connections into one simple process. Yet it's built incredibly tough to handle the real world demands of the dairy barn.

Most importantly, One Touch brings high-tech automation to stanchion operators with two optional management modules.

The TIMEKEEPER™ II module signals you when the cow finishes milking and displays how long she took to milk...promoting fast, consistent milking that leads to better udder health.

The Milk Yield Module measures individual cow production and milking time, allowing instant analysis of each cow's performance.

By putting today's production information at your fingertips, the SURGE One Touch lets you capture your cow's performance in the palm of your hand.

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 19, 1997 • 11 AM
Intercourse, PA

A Registered Holstein Herd

Sale Managers Note:
Count Your Blessings Everday and Be Grateful For What You Have This Holiday Season.

The Terhune Family was struck with tragedy one sad day in June, a barn fire and tragic loss of William all on the same day. In addition, many of the young stock were lost. We ask your support of this wonderful farm family and a super set of cows on December 19, 1997.

William Terhune served on the Sire Power Board of Directors for 18 years. He was past president of the NJ Holstein Association and loved the holstein industry and the farm families behind it. Plan on being with us for this SHORT NOTICE sale.

24,000 milk 800 fat 752 protein. Herd has been off test since this day. However, many are milking 90 to 100 lbs! No BST used! Many sell fresh or springing! Records exceeding 35,000 lbs. & many with generations of 150,000 lbs milk!

National 4-H Ad Campaign Promotes Youth Community Service

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Smokey Bear says, "Only you can prevent forest fires." McGruff the Crime Dog urges us to "take a bite out of crime." And if you don't wear your seatbelt, "you could learn a lot from a dummy" (a crash-test dummy, that is).

These are examples of successful public service advertising campaigns by the Advertising Council. Now, 4-H and the Ad Council have joined forces to ask, "Are you into it?"

That's the theme of a new national media campaign — called 4-H Youth Voices and Action — designed to promote volunteerism and community service among the nation's youth and to raise awareness of the diverse educational opportunities offered by 4-H. Public service ads began running on radio and television stations and in newspapers and other publications this fall.

"The ads are meant to encourage kids and adults to get involved in their communities," said Pattie Fantaske, who coordinates the 4-H Youth Voices and Action Campaign in Pennsylvania for Penn State Cooperative Extension.

"At the recent President's Summit on America's Future, 4-H made a commitment to involve an additional 300,000 youth in community service by the turn of the century," Fantaske said. "We hope this campaign will help us to reach that goal. At the same time, the program will help broaden the image of 4-H so people realize it's much more than just cows and cooking."

More than 119,000 urban and rural Pennsylvania youth between the ages of eight and 19 participate in 4-H programs, in subject areas such as the environment, clothing and textiles, entrepreneurship, photography, rocketry, horsemanship, entomology, plant science, nutrition, and global citizenship. Most 4-H clubs and projects include a community service component. Nationwide, 4-H involves 5.4 million youth and more than 500,000 adult volunteers.

The ads, created by advertising agency Bates USA, demonstrate that volunteering is a fun and worthwhile activity, and encourage youth and adults interested in community service to call a toll-free telephone number (888-77-YOUTH) or visit the campaign's World Wide Web site (www.areyouintoit.com). Callers will be contacted by a youth 4-H member or adult 4-H leader in their home county, who will provide information on community service volunteer opportunities, as well as on local 4-H clubs and activities.

The Ad Council, the nation's largest producer of public service advertising, receives more than 400 requests annually from nonprofit organizations and government agencies to develop public service ad campaigns. 4-H was one of only four client programs chosen to launch in 1997. The "Are You Into It?" campaign dovetails with the Ad Council's "Commitment 2000" project, a 10-year initiative focusing a majority of the council's efforts on children's issues.

"(Working with) 4-H really allows us to talk to a segment of our society that is so absolutely critical to the success of our country," said Eva Kasten, executive vice president of the Ad Council. "Learning to volunteer and to be involved in your community is a value that's learned very early on, and it's incredibly important."

Delmarva Corn/Soybean Broiler Conference Set

COLLEGE PARK, Md. – Poultry growers and grain producers will have a full menu of educational topics from which to choose during the 1998 Delmarva Corn and Soybean Technology Conference. The conference also features the largest agricultural trade show on the Delmarva peninsula.

The event is scheduled Feb. 18 at its usual location--the Wicomico, Youth and Civic Center in Salisbury. it will repeat its 1997 format of also serving as the annual grower educational seminar for Delmara Poultry Industry, Inc. (DPI).

Now in its 18th year, the conference again is being sponsored by agribusinesses serving the Delmarva area, by the cooperative extension service at land-grant universities in Delaware, Maryland and Virginia, and by DPI.

A new feature for 1998 will be a preconference evening session on Feb. 17 to accommodate persons unable to attend the Feb. 18 daytime program. It will afford opportunity to view many of the exhibits and attend a one-hour educational session on sustainable agriculture, or learn about the results of a costs and returns survey for Delmarva area poultry growers.

Certain to attract interest for the Feb. 18 daytime program will be an early-morning focus area on environmental issues, specifically nutrient management and soluble phosphorus. Concurrent sessions are set for cropping systems and poultry.

Late-morning focus areas will deal with grain marketing, small-grain management, and a repeat of poultry topics connected with tunnel ventilation and the findings of a Delmarva poultry grower attitudes survey.

The after noon program will be devoted to a keynote presentation by Ken Shwedel, regional director in Mexico, Central America, and the Caribbean for the American Soybean Association.

Admission to the conference is free. More than 50 commercial and educational exhibitors are expected to be on hand. A full lunch will be served at noon.

Lunch tickets will be available soon at $5 each from county offices of the Cooperative Extension Service throughout the Delmarva area, or from the Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc., office near Georgetown, Del. The ticket deadline is Feb. 13.

The Wicomico Youth & Civic Center is located behind the Salisbury Mall, off U.S. Highway 50 in southeast Salisbury.

Sky Meadows Farm Exhibits Champion At Louisville Show

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Chianina cattle enthusiasts gathered recently in Louisville, Ky., to witness the 25th edition of the ACA National Show where nearly 150 exhibitors from 20 states competed for the top show ring honors. The ACA (American Chianina Association) National event was held in conjunction with the North American International Livestock Exposition (NAILE), the largest livestock show in the world, Nov. 13-21. In addition to the outstanding breed display in the two-day National Show, the ACA conducted a National Sale, annual banquet and general membership meeting.

In the Chiangus bull show, Sky Meadows Hagaar 2CA, owned by Sky Meadows Farm, Annville, Pa., was selected as division IV reserve champion bull. The April 1996 bull was sired by Nittany Prince 420D 2CA and is out of LEH Nadia Power ICA.

Martin Receives Service Award

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Michael J. Martin, county extension director for Penn State Cooperative Extension and Outreach in Luzerne County, West Pittston, received the Distinguished Service Award from the National Association of Extension 4-H Agents (NAE4-HA).

The award ceremony was conducted during the National Cooperative Extension Galaxy Summit Conference in Cincinnati, Ohio, Oct 12-16.

In Martin's 10 years with cooperative extension, he has served as a 4-H agent in three states. His program emphasis is in science and technology and international programs.

Martin has been an International 4-H Youth Exchange (IFYE) representative to Costa Rica, and recently helped organize a 4-H program in the Republic of Albania. Martin is a past president of the Pennsylvania Association of Extension 4-H Agents (PAE4-HA) and active on the Member Recognition Committee of the National Association of Extension 4-H Agents.

"Being poultry farmers, we need a spreader that spreads evenly and thin. We also want a spreader that spreads fast. Our Knight 8030 ProTwin Slinger does this. No spreader we have had has ever spread as wide and as even as these spreaders. The 8030 pull spreader works so well, we also purchased a truck mounted 8030."

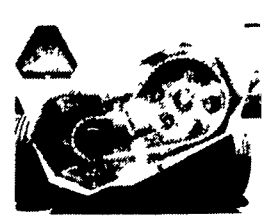
Patented Free Swinging Hammer Expeller

The expeller on all ProTwin models features 15 forged steel hammers mounted on a 2 1/4" shaft The hammers pivot on 1/2" bolts with nylon anti seize type bushings that allow free movement The expeller rotates at over 800 RPM allowing each eight pound hammer to swing down into the material, peeling it off and slinging it underhand in a fine spread pattern with no clumps The 3" wide free swinging hammers absorb shock and tolerate most foreign objects Each hammer is faced with a work hardening manganese steel wear plate for longer life and low cost replacement The adjustable shroud allows easy hammer clearance setting for optimum spread pattern width This proven hammer expeller design enables fine spreading control and material calibration through the combination of the hydraulic door opening and ground speed



Rear Drive Compartment*

The right auger is driven at the rear and is shear pin protected Bearings chains and sprockets are easily accessible for routine maintenance

Cooperative Director Institute Set For Penn State

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) – New and incumbent directors of cooperatives can sharpen their business and organizational skills by attending the 1998 Pennsylvania Cooperative Director Institute, Jan. 27-29 at the Penn Stater Conference Center and Hotel at Penn State's University Park Campus.

The institute will feature more than 15 sessions and informal discussions on topics such as cooperative finance, legal issues for cooperative directors, developing internal controls and environmental concerns. Speakers will include university specialists, cooperative staff and business leaders.

Samuel Hayes, Pennsylvania secretary of agriculture, and Robert Steele, dean of Penn States College of Agricultural Sciences, also will address the participants.

The institute opens with registration at 10 a.m. on Tuesday, Jan. 27, followed by lunch and welcoming comments. During the afternoon sessions on "director basics," Bruce Anderson, professor of agribusiness management at Cornell University, will focus on roles and responsibilities of the director, as well as cooperatives and their boards; and leadership consultant Gordon Milbrandt will profile "The successful director." As Tuesday's dinner speaker, Milbrandt will discuss "Identifying Key Elements for Board Governance Controls"

The morning agenda on Wednesday, Jan. 28, will include a breakfast update on the business and regulatory environment by Bill Frantz of Ocean Spray, followed by sessions on cooperative finances and developing goals and strategies. A panel discussion on leadership dynamics, board actions and strategies for success will highlight the afternoon program. Panel members will include experts from Agri-Link, Dairy Farmers of America, Cooperative Elevator Co. and Kroger Foods, the nation's largest grocery chain. At Wednesday evening's dinner, keynote speaker Don Dufek, retired vice president of Kroger Foods, will deliver a talk titled, "If You Controlled Your Business from Supply to Consumer, What Would You Do?"

Sessions on Thursday, Jan. 29, will focus on using self-assessment and controls to assure the right results, and legal implications of directorship. The event concludes with an afternoon luncheon and graduation ceremony.

For program details or registration information, contact Richard Poorbaugh by telephone at (814) 863-0644 or by e-mail at twp2@psu.edu.

Regional Agricultural Publications Available

NEWARK, Del. – Whether seeking environmentally sound ways to manage farm waste or faced with large-scale chicken carcass disposal, agricultural producers need up-to-date, research-based information.

Researchers from the University of Delaware help produce publications like the following, available for mail order from the Northeast Regional Agricultural Engineering Service.

• "On-Farm Large-Scale Chicken Carcass Composting," NRAES-110 – produced by the universities of Delaware and Maryland and the Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc. – is a 10-minute videotape exploring the cost-effective and environmentally safe method of on-farm carcass disposal using windrow composting. It costs $15 plus shipping and handling.

• "Nutrient Management: Crop Production and Water Quality," NRAES-101, is a newly revised 40-page illustrated guide to designing and sustaining an economically and environmentally sound nutrient management program. It costs $8 plus shipping and handling. Two companion workbooks are also available: "Nutrient Management Workbook," NRAES-102, is a 24-page publication containing work sheets necessary for developing a nutrient management plan consistent with Cornell University's recommendations ($2.50 plus shipping and handling). The 12-page workbook "Estimating a Mass Nutrient Balance," NRAES-103, offers a framework for estimating mass balances for nutrients, at a cost of $1.50 plus shipping and handling.

"Farm Waste Management Makes $ense," NRAES-111, is a 9-minute video that provides an overview of economic questions surrounding agricultural waste disposal, key to the financial success of farms. It also offers suggestions for effective, environmentally safe waste management. The cost is $20 plus shipping and handling.

"Marketing and Shipping Live Aquatic Products," NRAES-107, is the proceedings of a 1996 conference. This illustrated collection of 49 papers gives information on animal welfare, environmental issues, harvest and transport technology, and marketing and regulatory issues related to live aquatic products. It costs $65 plus $7 shipping and handling.

Shipping and handling charges are $3.50 for orders totaling $20 or less. Quantity discounts are available. Make check payable to NRAES and send to NRAES, Cooperative Extension, 152 Riley-Robb Hall, Ithaca, N.Y. 14853-5701. For more information, or for a free publication catalog, call (607) 255-7654; fax at (607) 254-8770; or e-mail at nraes@cornell.edu.

Case IH Tractors Offer Versatility

RACINE, Wis. — Case Corporation introduces its most versatile line of utility tractors ever with the unveiling of the Case IH C Series and CX Series models.

These tractors, offered in six sizes ranging from 40 to 84 PTO horsepower, perform a wide variety of farmyard and field work while providing an outstanding environment for operators.

"Our customers told us they were looking for a lot of functions coming from tractors in this class," said Bill Weber, Case marketing application specialist. "Since they're used so much, farmers also want them to be comfortable."

"We're excited about the role these tractors can play, and so are the farmers who helped us with the design."

The versatility starts in the set-up of the tractors, Weber says. All the models — the CX50, CX60, CX70, CX80, CX90 and CX100 — are available in flat platform or cab configurations, with mechanical front drive available if desired as well as loaders, so operators will be able to choose an equipment combination tailored to their needs. Straddle style tractors, identified as C Series models, are also available in all six sizes.

The engines deliver an optimum package of power and economy, Weber said. "The engines develop up to 37 percent PTO torque rise and high maximum torque to pull through the tough spots, yet they're very economical. Combined with the 40-gallon fuel tank on the cab and flat platform models, that efficiency provides extended hours of operation before refueling."

Case introduces two new lines of Case IH tractors, ranging from 40 to 84 PTO horsepower. These versatile tractors, including the CX90, are designed to perform a wide variety of farmyard and field tasks.

Easy, reliable starts are another important feature for a versatile tractor. "These models start well, and the new combustion technology results in less visible smoke and cleaner operation," Weber said.

Operator comfort also is improved by low engine noise levels. Noise levels are rated at 73 dB(A), for cab-equipped models, the lowest sound level in the industry. Ergonomically designed controls also increase efficiency.

The hydraulics of the new series are stout, he notes. Total hydraulic capacity is 26 gallons per minute, with 18.4 gallons per minute sent to the hitch and remotes. This capacity results in exceptional flow for every job, decreased cycle times and increased lift capacity. The oil level in this system can be checked cold, to make maintenance easier.

HOFFMAN SEEDS Presents Technology Field Day

Mount Joy Co-Op Announces Door Prize Winners

MOUNT JOY (Lancaster Co.) – On Nov. 10, Mount Joy Farmers Co-op hosted an informational meeting of dairy farmers of southeast Pennsylvania.

Member services that were highlighted included health insurance, investments, and retirement programs. Bulk buying of commodities and farm supplies were also featured. Likewise, loans for milk equipment and herd leasing programs are also now available. These support services are the result of the new working relationship between Mount Joy Co-op and Dairylea Cooperative Inc.

For many years, Dairylea has been a leading dairy cooperative in the Northeast Mount Joy and Dairylea have developed a 10-year marketing agreement. One of the benefits of this relationship is that Mount Joy members can participate in cost-saving programs which Dairylea has designed to help its own membership. They work diligently to secure the best market premiums, plus minimizing farm costs and maximizing marketing opportunities. The programs available to Mount Joy members are an extension of those programs offered to their own membership in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and the New England states.

Four winners were chosen more than 300 people in attendance. Gift certificates valued at $150 each from local farm-service providers were awarded to Jay Richard Runyan, Newburg; Edwin Zimmerman, Manheim; Nelson Weaver, Manheim; and Springlawn Farm (Garber Brothers), Lancaster.

Deere Announces Self-Propelled Forage Harvesters

MOLINE, Ill. — John Deere has announced a new family of self-propelled forage harvesters that offer some of the most powerful engines in the industry, improved harvesting capabilities, and easier servicing and maintenance. The company also announced two new hay/grass pickups and a new row-independent rotary header for the forage harvesters.

The John Deere 6650, 6750, 6850, and 6950 Self-Propelled Forage Harvesters replace the current 6610, 6710, 6810, and 6910 models.

The new 6650 Forage Harvester is powered by a 280-hp, 8.1-liter engine; the 6750 features a 365-hp, 12.5-liter engine; the 6850 has a 440-hp, 12.5-liter engine; and the 6950 features a 505-hp, 14-liter engine. The engines feature electronic governors that respond instantly to changing field conditions. When the engines lug down to 1,900 rpm, they generate up to 11 percent more power — up to 540 hp on the model 6950.

Fuel and coolant lines on the engines are routed internally to eliminate potential leaks. Rubber isomounts reduce engine noise and vibration. Exclusive hydraulic belt tensioning improves belt life and makes replacement easier.

The new forage harvesters feature a swing-away feedroll housing for easy one-person opening and closing, and a new, optional central lubrication system. A self-cleaning rotary air screen keeps clean air flowing for maximum efficiency. On-board diagnostics make it easy to pinpoint potential problems. The machines' side shields are mounted on gas-charged struts to lift esily and hold in place.

Both the new 4.5-meter 645A and 3-meter 630A Hay/Grass Pickups feature optional compressor sheets that improve performance in light or dry hay. Reinforced sideframes and stronger major drive components add to the reliability and durability of these new pickups.

The John Deere 6750 Self-Propelled Forage Harvester, rated at 365 horsepower, is one of four new models that range from 280 to 505 horsepower.

A new 6-meter Model 688 Row-Independent Header joins the 4.5-meter Model 676 Header in the product lineup. Both allow an operator to cut back and forth across a field, in circles, or even diagonally to open fields or cut end rows. John Deere also offers two corn header models for self-propelled forage harvesters, including the 664R 4-Row and 666R 6-Row Headers.

The Quick-Tatch mounting bracket allows the operator to quickly switch from a hay pickup to a corn header.

Each of the new John Deere Forage Harvesters feature high-performance feedrolls that assure uniform material flow. The large, spiral-fluted upper front feedroll has V-shaped teeth and exclusive reinforced gussets. Rear feedrolls pivot in a radial arc around the cutterhead to keep full control of the crop mat for a more uniform length of cut. Two-position pre-compression springs let the operator vary the load to match chopping requirements. The feedrolls can be reversed from the operator's seat to back out obstructions.

Each model also features John Deere's Dura-Drum cutterhead, which has 48 individual knives mounted on a fully enclosed drum to cut forage more efficiently. Individual knives can be replaced by loosening three bolts and sliding out the knife. This process is much easier and cheaper than replacing a full-width knife. New, angled knives are also available for corn. The cutterhead rotates in reverse to sharpen the knives (an exclusive feature), thus eliminating the need to rebevel the knives with a hand-held grinder. John Deere's exclusive "walking" shearbar makes it easy to set the optimum distance to the knives for precision chopping.

An integral hoist allows the operator to install or remove the optional kernel processor in approximately five minutes, making it easy to switch between corn and hay. The operator can adjust the width between the rolls from 2 to 10 mm. Electronic adjustment from the cab is available as an option. The rolls are spring-loaded to protect against damage from small rocks or other foreign material.

A new, staggered-paddle blower features 12 individual cutter knives clamped to a solid axle. The 8-mm blower band is more durable than before. Plus, the band can be replaced in less than 30 minutes.

The center-mount spout provides the operator with more delivery options. The spout rotates 200 degrees for unmatched visibility and easier crop delivery to either side of the machine. Spout extensions and a high-arch spout are available to improve work in windy conditions or in side-delivery operations. The operator can control spout rotation and height from the cab, and the double spout-cap deflectors fold in proper relation to each other as the operator adjusts the spout.

HI-RISE LAYER MANAGERS
WE HAVE STIR AERATOR TO HELP WITH

FLY & ODOR CONTROL

BIG PERFORMANCE...SMALL PRICE

SIMPLE PROCEDURE: the aerator works directly into the bed of material, forming its own windrow. Windrows can be formed from piles of nearly any size. Alleyways are not required when using the Brown aerator, so there is a great reduction in space requirements. The aerator's reverse rotation works the material from the bottom up, and to the side, assuring complete mixing and agitation. LOW MAINTENANCE: the aerator is a simple design, the principle as a material mover has been proven with over 30 years experience in practical application. The aerator is hydraulically driven and equipped with patented wearplates or paddles, both of which are easily replaced.

Catoctin District Honors Cooperators

KAREN BUTLER
Maryland Correspondent

JEFFERSON, Md. — The Catoctin Soil Conservation district honored three farms for their commitment to conservation recently at their annual cooperator's banquet.

About 150 people attended the evening banquet held at the Jefferson Ruritan Community Center.

The Take Pride In America Award is presented annually to a cooperating farmer who has implemented and maintained best management practices in the farmer's operation. This year Pual and Virginia Coblentz, Deerspring Dairy Farm, were honored with the award. Mr. and Mrs. Coblentz and their sons Joe and Scott milk 300 cows at their dairy south of Middletown. They raise 225 head of replacement heifers and 500 acres of crops on a farm that has been in the Coblentz family more than 200 years.

The tradition of partnership with soil conservation in the Coblentz family goes back a generation to Paul Coblentz' father, who signed on as a cooperator with the Catoctin district in 1939. In 1938 the first conservation practice was installed on the farm, a diversion installed by the Civilian Conservation Corps.

Paul and Virginia installed an ag waste facility and follow a nutrient management program. Paul practices minimum tillage and says there has not been a moldboard plow on the farm in 45 years. He likes to plant oats early in the fall for feed, allowing the roots to stabilize the soil over winter, and then plants corn into the field. "Any practice we put into use is only as successful as the farmer's ability to manage it," said Coblentz.

The 1997 Cooperator of the Year Award was presented to Ron and Kathy Holter, Holterholm Farm. The Holter family intensely manages a rotational grazing system for their dairy herd in the Middletown Valley. Their farm has been a showplace for rotational grazing since they made the transition several years ago, and the Holters actively maintain a commitment to education and information on rotational grazing.

Working in conjunction with Stan Fultz, extension agent in dairy science with the Frederick County Extension Service. The Holters have opened their farm for pasture walks and other demonstrations. They have hosted informational tours for both the Catoctin and Frederick soil conservation districts.

The Holters began converting to their rotational grazing system in 1995 by putting all heifers and dry cows on seven acres of permanent pasture. The balance of the farm was gradually planted in permanent stands of perennial ryegrass, endophyte-free fescue, reed canarygrass, orchardgrass, white clover, two prairie grasses, and puna chicory.

In the spring of 1996 they put the milk cows on pasture. Permanent pasture has proved to be both an environmental and economic advantage for the Holters, who have successfully increased their net revenue on a per-cow basis more than $350 since making the transition.

The commitment to environmental stewardship goes back several generations in Ron Holter's family, to his grandfather, Cecil Holter. Cecil Holter served on the Catoctin district board from 1944-51. Ron's father, Richard Holter, served on the Catoctin district board for more than 30 years, and his mother, Sarah Holter, was active in the local auxiliary and also in both the Northeast and national association of soil conservation districts.

The Charles H. Remsburg Memorial Award is given each year to the cooperator installing the most effective variety of soil conservation and improved water quality practices within a two-year time period. This year the honor went to Zene and Audrey Wolfe, Laurelane Angus Farm. The Wolfes have a cow-calf operation in Myersville, raising about 60 head of Angus.

Zene Wolfe was born on the farm in 1939. In 1965 he and his father, Wolford Wolfe, started raising heifers and beef. The elder Wolfe served on the Catoctin district board of supervisors from 1951-1963.

In the last several years, Zene and Audrey Wolfe have installed a waste storage facility, roof runoff management, and a spring development and trough. Future plans include another spring development and pasture renovation for the beef operation.

Chester County Honors 4-H Dairy, Dairy Goat Members

Atglen (Chester Co.), Pa. – The Chester County 4-H Dairy and Dairy Goat Awards Banquet was held Thursday, Nov. 13, at the West Fallowfield Christian School.

A dinner was served to 115 4-H'ers and their families and friends. Manor Dairy Club was in charge of the affair and various 4-H members conducted the meeting with Kathryn Young of West Grove serving as the master of ceremonies.

Melissa J. Wertz, Chester County's dairy princess, presented a skit on the importance of promoting milk to young adults.

Russ Albright of Keystone Farm Credit gave the group an update on the Romano 4-H Center of Chester County. Numerous events were held at the 4-H center this year, but perhaps the most exciting was the first-ever Chester County 4-H Farm Show Week, highlighting a spectrum of 4-H projects. Also, a very successful 4-H Center Benefit Auction was held in late September. The money raised at this event will be used to cover current expenses and construct new facilities in the future.

The Tri-Community Dairy Club presented a humorous skit on all of the people a farmer comes in contact with on a "typical" day. Various characters were portrayed, such as the breeder, feed salesman, equipment mechanic, and even the farmer's wife. The show culminated when a 4-H leader dressed up in pseudo-Red Wing work shoes, depicting Steve Dietrich, the county dairy agent.

Dairy Goat Awards were presented to the high individual project book scores in each club based on the quality and completeness of their book and their performance at the county round-up in July. Melissa Wertz, Phoenixville, captured the high achievement award for the Chester County Kids Club. In the New London Club, Jessica Bohmier had the top project award. Awards were also presented to the fitting and showing champions and the breed champions from the Chester County 4-H Dairy Goat Roundup this past summer.

The top Achievement Award for Dairy based on the total project score was won by Tri-Community member Vicky Hewitt of Spring City with her Holstein cow project, Hewitt's Melwood Melba II. In conjunction with this award, Vicky also received a rotating plaque given by Mildred Seeds of Downingtown, in memory of her parents, George and Mary Seeds Other Achievement Award winners included Beverly Stoltzfus, Elverson, of the Tri-Community Dairy Club receiving a First Year trophy. In the Manor Dairy Club, Robert Petrovich, Cochranville, was the winner with Kelby Hershey, also of Cochranville, taking First Year honors. Meredith Baily, West Chester, captured the award in the Chester Valley Club while Patricia Harrop of Chester Springs was the First Year winner.

Production Awards, based on M.E., 305-day records, 2X were given to the top entries in five breeds. The Ayrshire winner for milk and protein was Pure-Ayr St. White Nikita with 21,320 pounds of milk and 711 pounds of protein entered by Kathryn Young of West Grove. Vicky Hewitt, Spring City, had the high Holstein for milk and protein, Hewitts Melwood Melba II, with 27,071 pounds of milk and 866 pounds of protein. Agape Van Buren Meadow Bear, owned by Erica Lloyd, Pottstown, was the high Jersey cow for milk and protein, delivering 21,969 pounds of milk and 795 pounds of protein. Julie Sollenberger, Spring City, had the high Guernsey for milk and protein, French Creek Victory Valentine, with 16,603 pounds of milk and 554 pounds of protein. Meredith Baily, West Chester, won the milk production award for Linebacks with Pocopson meadow Sugar delivering 20,331 pounds of milk. Meredith also took top honors in the protein award for Linebacks with Carlson Farm Hershey Kiss, exhibiting 611 pounds of protein. Trophies were also given out to the 1997 4-H Dairy Round-Up Show winners and Fitting and Showmanship champions.

Farm Credit Awards for excellence in a wide variety of 4-H activities went to Melissa Wertz, Phoenixville, for the Senior Dairy and Dairy Goat Awards, receiving two $50 savings bonds. A $25 cash award went to Julie Sollenberger, Spring City, as the junior dairy winner. Jessica Bohmier of New London captured the Junior Dairy Goat Award, receiving $25. They were presented by Russ Albright from Keystone Farm Credit, ACA, Avondale.

Bruno Speaks At New York Farm Bureau Annual Meeting

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. – State Senate Majority Leader Joseph Bruno was welcomed by a standing ovation to New York Farm Bureau's Annual Meeting in Saratoga Springs.

As he entered the room to address the crowd on issues concerning agriculture across the state, more than 500 Farm Bureau members rose to their feet.

In his 30-minute speech, the longtime supporter of New York agriculture described the industry as "the toughest business in the state." Bruno went on to say that his largest contribution to the agricultural industry has been the numerous tax cut initiatives that he has introduced and/or supported.

Bruno added that he had worked closely with Governor Pataki to pass the 1996-97 State Budget that included $5 billion in tax cuts. "More taxes have been cut over the last three years than all other 49 states combined," said Bruno. Bruno also highlighted the energy deregulation pilot project that started in November as another way New York State was working to help the agricultural community.

"It is a great day for Farm Bureau when the senate majority leader speaks to our members about the many positive changes he has worked for over the past several years," said John Lincoln, New York Farm Bureau president. "Sen. Bruno has been a longtime 'Friend of Agriculture' recipient and we appreciate his support as well as his willingness to work with Farm Bureau toward needed solutions."

Bruno emphasized the importance of New York Farm Bureau and the role the organization plays in the governmental arena. He concluded his speech by encouraging all Farm Bureau members to continue their lobbying work and sharing their policies relating to the agricultural field and economy with the state's elected officials.

HARVEST CORN NO MATTER THE ROW SPACING WITH NEW RU450 INDEPENDENT CORN HEAD

Claas of America offers the RU 450 row independent converging corn head for its self-propelled forage harvesters. The RU 450 enables corn to be harvested no matter the row spacing or direction harvested and features a working width of 14'9".

The head features three rotating drums which cut and deliver the crop. Double transport discs on each drum capture the corn plants for crop delivery. The mowing disc, located under the transport discs, cuts the crop and then delivers it to the feed augers The three symmetrical rotors assure even crop flow to the feed rollers

The chainless rotor drive system is made up of universal drive shafts and oil bath gearboxes. Drives are protected by low maintenance overload clutches. With fewer moving parts than a conventional corn head, the RU 450 requires less maintenance resulting in higher output.

Transport of the head is done by activating a hydraulic valve from the cab which folds the outer rotors into a vertical position.

LUCK//NOW MIXER FEEDERS "P" SERIES

Since 1979 LUCK//NOW Mixer Feeders have been recognized as one of the most dependable and strongest built mixers in the field.

To enhance its existing line of Mixer Feeders, LUCK//NOW introduces the "P" Series of Mixer Feeders with six models ranging in size from the Model 300 with a mixing capacity of 310 cubic ft., to the Model 575 with a mixing capacity of 625 cubic ft.

The Large diameter augers in all the "P" Series Mixer feeders are capable of giving the mix required, from rations with well cured, long stemmed legume-type hay, to mixes with green grass, and mixes with silage and commodities. Better milk production, better weight gains and greatly improved animal health are just some of the results of a finely-tuned feed ration.

Northeast Farmers Direct Marketing Conference Begins Ground Hog's Day

STURBRIDGE, Mass. — The big news next Ground Hog's Day will be that the farmers came out from their winter naps, too.

The 1998 Northeast Farmers Direct Marketing Conference and Trade show begins on Feb. 2 at the Sturbridge Host Hotel and Conference Center in Sturbridge. The conference extends over three days, followed by educational bus tours on Feb. 5-6.

The 1998 conference will be hosted by the Federation of Massachusetts Farmers' Markets and the New York State Farmers' Direct Marketing Association. It will be co-sponsored by a variety of other farm direct marketing organizations, cooperative extensions programs, and departments of agriculture from Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, and parts of Canada.

Four concurrent pre-conference seminars will be held Monday, Feb. 2 from 9 a.m.-4 p.m. They each present an in-depth program including specialty cut flowers, pick-your-own operations, on-farm bakeries, and farmers's market managers and organizers. The trade show opens at 4 p.m. and the conference activities begin with country cooking, country talk, and country music.

The conference, whose theme is "Communication . . . With Family, With Employees, With Consumers," begins Feb. 3, featuring 36 sessions in six concurrent tracks including ag tourism, farm family relations, structure and displays, specialized marketing, business management, and reaching consumers.

For more information, call Charlie Touchette, executive director of the federation of the Massachusetts Farmers' Markets and Conference, at (413) 527-6572. Inquiries for trade show booth space should be directed to trade show coordinators Toby and Jane Cargin in New York at (607) 692-4642, phone or fax.

Farm Input Costs To Stay Low in '98

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Farmers may pay less than a 1 percent increase in 1998 production input costs due to the anti-inflationary policies of the Federal Reserve Board, said agricultural economist Allan Lines of Ohio State University.

"They've kept inflation at a very low rate of 2 percent per annum or less," Lines said.

"As chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, Allan Greenspan and board members are very astute in managing the country's money supply and interest rates, which has kept inflation at bay," Lines said.

With inflation under control, manufacturers won't have to raise prices significantly to meet the costs of making inputs used by farmers, such as fertilizers, seeds and chemicals, Lines said.

That's good news because input costs are a major farm expense that cuts into income. In 1995, Ohio farmers paid $2.5 billion in input costs, or 54 percent relative to $4.6 billion earned from cash marketing of crops and livestock, he said.

Historically, input costs rise faster than farm income, Lines said. The cost-income imbalance forces farmers to increase their farm sizes in order to produce more to make ends meet, he said.

"That's why we see farm businesses getting larger, so they can become more efficient," Lines said.

This year's big surprise was the very moderate 2 percent increase in equipment costs, given that farmers were eager to replace aging machinery, Lines said. Apparently manufacturers are competitive enough to keep price increases low in spite of costly high-tech features and farmers' increased demand, he said. Expect similar increases in 1998.

Farmers will likely pay 1 percent less for fuel due to relative stability in oil-producing countries, Lines said. The last price shock was during the 1991 Persian Gulf War. Even the recent scuffle over U.N. inspectors' access to Iraq has not shaken the market, he said. In addition, predictions for a mild winter may keep demand in line for heating fuels.

Lowered petroleum prices may cut nitrogen costs by 4 percent to 5 percent, and potassium and potash prices will likely hold steady.

Grain farmers' biggest increases will be a 3 percent to 4 percent hike in seeds as companies add expensive biotech lines to the market. The increase is about the same as in 1997. The upside is that costs for seed-linked herbicides could drop as companies compete with biotech products. Expect chemical prices to decline 3 percent to 5 percent after a 1 percent hike in 1997.

Lines said livestock producers will be most vulnerable to price fluctuations, although costs of feed, feeder pigs and cattle will decline after sharp increases in the past few years.

Livestock production is sensitive to a very tight world feedgrains supply and demand, he said. Prices can be volatile depending on any trouble spots in grain-producing areas, Lines said.

"The prices fo corn, soybeans and wheat will respond sharply to any unexpected change in demand or any unexpected change in supply," Lines said.

Soybean meal prices will decline by 23 percent, which will offset a 5 percent to 7 percent increase in corn, Lines said. Overall feed costs will balance out to about a 4 percent decline, compared to a 6 percent decline in 1997 and 28 percent hike in 1996.

"Livestock producers should consider locking in current feed prices," Lines said.

As for feeder livestock, expect pig prices to decline about $5 per head, while cattle prices hold steady per hundredweight in the high $70 to low $80 range, Lines said. Overall, prices will be 2 percent lower in 1998 compared to a 25 percent hike this year.

Long-term control of input prices will depend on the success of keeping inflation, wages and energy prices under control, Lines said. In the short run, volatile feedgrain prices will pressure livestock producers' management decisions but will be of lesser influence in the long term, he said.

Patent Makes It Illegal To Save Seed

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — Growers who harvested Roundup Ready® soybeans, Roundup Ready® cotton or Bollgard® cotton this year and plan to replant some of that seed next spring, may want to reconsider.

Backed by U.S. patent law, Monsanto continues to enforce its "no saved seed restriction" on these biotech crops. Unlike seed covered by the Plant Variety Protection (PVP) Act, it is a violation of U.S. patent law to save and replant any brand or variety of Roundup Ready soybeans, Roundup Ready cotton or Bollgard cotton, even if an agreement or order/invoice statement was not signed when the seed was acquired. The patent law also applies to people who sell the saved seed for planting, a practice commonly referred to as "brown-bagging."

"Monsanto has invested millions of dollars to develop the biotech crops that deliver superior value to growers," said Lisa Safarian, business development manager of intellectual property for Monsanto. Safarian said Monsanto must protect these biotech crops in the same way other companies protect their patented innovations such as computer software. "This is positive for the entire industry, including growers, because it encourages further investment in new technologies growers want and need," said Safarian.

In its 1997-98 resolutions, the American Soybean Association (ASA) supports "Current patent laws . . . and feels this protection is important to encourage investment in research that will keep soybeans as a profitable crop . . ."

If growers decide to risk saving seed, Safarian said companies have fewer incentives to invest in future technology, such as the development of seeds with traits that produce higher-yielding, higher value and drought-tolerant crops. In addition, Safarian said growers risk crop loss if a grower mixes genetically enhanced seeds with regular seeds. She said new seed gives a grower quality assurance such as strictly enforced germination standards and higher yields.

Monsanto utilizes grower agreements, order/invoice statements, direct-mail and media to communicate with growers, seed companies, seed cleaners and ag chem dealers about the reponsibilities that come with its patented biotech seeds.

"We believe growers are honest business people who will not legally save biotech seed," Safarian said. "However, growers have told us that they expect us to keep the playing field level. If they can't save the seed, they don't want their neighbors to save it either."

To maintain that level playing field, private investigators and lawyers investigate for Monsanto all reports of growers suspected of saving Roundup Ready soybeans, Roundup Ready cotton or Bollgard cotton. The company is actively pursuing leads in 20 states and has followed-up on over 100 leads reported by seed cleaners, ag chem retailers, growers, seed company representatives and seed regulators.

In addition, Safarian said the remote sensing technology that is being used in precision ag to map fields, helping growers detect pests and plant diseases, is also capable of identifying plant varieties which contain specific traits such as Roundup Ready or Bollgard.

"Not all of our leads turn out to be growers who save seed. In fact, in many cases we've prevented growers from replanting saved seed through education."

If Monsanto finds a violator, the company attempts to work directly with the grower to resolve the situation. "A number of cases have been resolved through a variety of terms including substantial cash payments, future field inspections, future access to farm and business records and strict adherence to the 'no saved seed requirements'," said Safarian. However, in some cases, Safarian said Monsanto is forced to protect its patent rights in court.

"Preventing the replanting of saved seed is much more desirable than enforcement, but Monsanto is prepared to enforce its patents. The company is dedicated to the future of biotechnology for agriculture and to fairness for all growers," said Safarian.

Are You Getting Your Money's Worth?

If You're Not Liming Properly, You're Throwing Away Part Of Every Fertilizer Dollar.

By correcting soil acidity, limestone frees-up desirable nutrients that feed your crop. Plus, limestone ties up toxic elements that reduce crop production.

High nitrogen use in modern farming practices acidifies the soil quickly. This limits your crop vigor and yields. Therefore, today it's more important than ever to lime according to soil test results. Proper liming gives you the most from your fertilizer dollar.

ANTIBIOTICS DAMAGE THE IMMUNE SYSTEM
Vitamix FEEDS THE IMMUNE SYSTEM
You Can Sell The Milk
When You Use Vitamix Instead Of Antibiotics

Vitamix is for every contagious disease & every kind of infection. Support the immune system their lives depend on it.

You can sell the milk when feeding Vitamix. Vitamix is a mixture of vitamins, minerals, enzymes, electrolytes, and proteins, especially calculated to feed the immune system. Vitamix is the result of over 20 years research and over 20,000 feeding experiments. Vitamix ingredients are so micro pulverized and easily digestible that some of them melt in the mouth and are absorbed into the bloodstream while the cow is still chewing her feed. Her organs increase the output of antibodies (white cells) within minutes, and can often double the output of antibodies within one hour after consuming Vitamix, and you can get Vitamix without a prescription. Vitamix is all natural. You just put Vitamix in the feed whenever there are symptoms of a contagious disease or infection.

The cow's immune system can cure any and every kind of contagious disease and infection quicker, safer, more consistently than any medical drug in the world when you support the immune system. The immune system is the only real defense. I keep cows and horses for feeding experiments.The last tlme I used an antibiotic was in 1984 and haven't lost a cow, calf or horse since I quit using antibiotics.

Any time any human or animal gets a contagious disease or any kind of infection, it is for one reason, and one reason only; The immune system failed to do an adequate job of defending against it. In other words, the immune system let you down.

Every time you use antibiotics, sulfa drug or an immune stimulator; you weaken the immune system. See the Physicians Desk Reference (PDR) for more information on the side effects of antibiotics. The information in the PDR was provided by the drug companies that make the drugs as required by law.

Shouldn't we be feeding the immune system instead? Support the immune system. Their lives and health depend on it. Feed Vitamix every time for every contagious disease or infection.

Vitamix is the best procedure in the world for Mastitis. It is quick and easy and you can sell the milk when feeding Vitamix.

How long does it take when you take the "Support the immune system approach?" I have seen calves that were down, had high fever, bloody scours and were dehydrated. One needed help to hold its head up. The only thing I gave them was Vitamix and water. In three hours, I had to run them down and get them cornered to give the Vitamix. Dairymen tell me that Vitamix is faster than anything else they ever used.

When there is a serious case of anything contagious or infectious; I give Vitamix once an hour for three hours, or until they are back on their feed and doing noticeably better. I continue Vitamix six times daily for a few days. Vitamix typically costs only $2 to $3 a day for a cow (less for a calf). The total cost for one cow for one illness is typically $8 to $10 from start to finish.

Vitamix costs less than antibiotics, and you can get it without a prescription. Vitamix is completely drug free!!! You can sell the milk when you use Vitamix!!! (When you use antibiotics, you pour the milk out for 5 days, sometimes more. You risk making a mistake and pouring all your milk out for 5 days or more.)

You save money Every Time you use Vitamix. Get some Vitamix now to keep on hand. Use Vitamix as soon as you see symptoms of anything contagious or infectious. You will know you did the right thing within hours.

Preventing and curing all contagious disease and infections boils down to this. Increasing the capacity to produce white cells (Antibodies). All white cells are made by the bone marrow. Antibiotics cause "bone marrow depression" thereby reducing its ability to make white cells to fight diseases and infection (See Physician's Desk Reference Book [PDR]).

I have done over 20,000 feeding experiments on healing the body, and have yet to find an incurable contagious disease or infection.

Why sit around waiting for a miracle? You can order Vitamix right now. Miracles are great and they do happen now and then; if you wait around one might happen for you. But the immune system is a miracle. You can order Vitamix today and keep it on hand, then you will have it when you need it.

Vitamix ...when you need a miracle. The best source of information about Vitamix is people who have used it. Ask a friend about Vitamix.
